Duke de Chaulnes and His Beautiful American Bride

DUC DE CHAULNES HUSBAND OF THEODORA SHONTS DIES IN BED

Young French Nobleman Who Recently Married American Heiress Found Lifeless by His Wife—Tragic Climax to International Romance.

PARIS, April 24.—The Duc de Chaulnes was found dead in bed to-day beside his wife, formerly Miss Theodora Shonts, in their apartment at the Langham Hotel.

De Chaulnes was plainly a victim of heart disease. The exact hour of his death is uncertain. His wife found him lifeless when she awoke, and her screams gave the first alarm.

Servants rushed to the bed chamber, and a physician was immediately summoned, but pronounced the young nobleman already lifeless the moment he saw him. His bride of two months is prostrated.

The Duke shortly after his marriage was seriously ill for a time in the Washington home of the Shonts' family. The trouble then was an abscess of the throat, which, however, had seemed to yield to treatment, and the Duke's health was deemed completely restored before he sailed away to France with his bride.

De Chaulnes married Theodora P. Shonts, daughter of Theodore P. Shonts, former president of the Clover Leaf Railroad, later chairman of the Panama Canal Commission, and now president of the Interboro Railway Company of New York city, February 15.

The couple left after a short bridal tour for Paris, where they have been ever since. The death of the young nobleman was entirely unexpected.

Courtship Romantic.

The Chaulnes' courtship was decidedly a romantic one. He met Miss Shonts in France, while she was abroad with her parents nearly three years ago, and fell desperately in love with her immediately.

Finally he admitted for publication that to end the object of his suit were afflicted. Every one was surprised, for it was generally assumed that De Chaulnes must know that he talking about. Miss Shonts absolutely denied the engagement.

When Mr. Shonts returned to the United States from abroad a short time later he was fairly overwhelmed with newspaper inquiries for the actual facts of the case, and merely laughed at the idea of a marriage between his daughter and a foreign nobleman.

Miss Shonts and other members of her family followed the fracties magnate back from Europe soon afterward and again Miss Shonts denis dtnht she even thought of marrying the young Frenchman.

Then De Chaulnes came to America himself to push his suit. He did it so successfully that the engagement was finally formally announced. No one ever knew exactly what were the merits of the first story. Concerning the second one there was no doubt.

Intended to Earn Own Living.

Mr. Shonts frankly admitted that he had been a steadfast opponent of international marriages, but that De Chaulnes's manliness and persistency had finally won him over. He has since spoken in the kindest terms of his son-in-law.

When De Chaulnes and his bride sailed for Paris in March the bunnand was quoted by the press here as saying that he did not intend to depend on his father-in-law to support him—and his wife, indeed, had brought hi uno fortune—but proposed to make his own living.

He had arranged, he said, to become New York representative of an international firm of dealers in railway securities and would return to the new world with his wife after a brief stay on this side of the Atlantic.

He never attempted to conceal the fact that he had lived an extravagant before marriage, and was more or less annoyed later by creditors, who figured that his marriage must have placed him in a position where he would be able to meet their claims.

De Chaulnes made light of these troubles, promised his creditors to pay them in the end distant future, and was much cheered by friendly messages from Mr. Shonts.

Planned Return to New York.

It is understood the young nobleman was arranging here for the position he expected to take in New York, and expected to return soon to carve out a career for himself.

He was a member of one of the oldest and blue blooded families in France and well known to boulevardiers up to the time of his trip to the United States as a suitor for Mrs. Shonts' hand.

Miss Shonts's engagement was looked upon as a brilliant climax to a brilliant social success abroad. She was graduated in 1905, and since then with her mother and twin sister spent much time abroad. They were feted at all the European capitals, scoring many social triumphs. The young Duchess, who has just been widowed, is but twenty-two years of age.

De Chaulnes was but thirty years of age. He comes from a most distinguished French family of the old Bourbon regime. He has been well known in sporting circles. He belonged to the Cercle de la Rue Royale, Cercle Hoche, and the Societie Sportive de l'Ile de Puteaux. All forms of outdoor sports interested him.

His home was in the Avenue Van Dyck in the Parc Monceau quarter of Paris. He had a splendid chateau at Sarathe. His mother, the Princess Beplin Augustinova Galitzen was a famous beauty in her day.

HOW SPOILS IN 'L' HOLD-UP WERE DIVIDED

Daring Milk Street Robbery Recalled by Testimony of Lycett in Court.

The story of the daring robbery of $4,340 from an Elevated road paymaster was recalled to-day by James R. Lycett during the trial in the Superior Court of James W. Harrington and his daughter, Mrs. Regina Nichols. The defendants are charged with receiving a large part of the stolen money after the Milk street hold-up.

"After the robbery we found went to Harrington's house in Columbus avenue and divided the money," declared Lycett on the stand. "When I got there the bag was in the house, having been brought there in the buggy.

"I went to Harrington's house in a car. We made four parts of the loot and each one of us got $1,085, $45 being in silver.

James R. Keeney, eighteen years old, and one of the four men now doing time for the crime, startled the court by charging that he had been drugged in the Tombs. He testified that he could not recall making any statement accusing Harrington or his daughter, and said that if he had it was after being given some drug while in custody.

"One of the guards brought some food to me and I think the drug was in it," he said. "I don't know who sent it in to me. This was before I made the statement that they say I made."

"We asked Frank Harrington, the defendant's son, if he would keep the silver for us," said Lycett. "He agreed and then I left, taking my bills with me. I went to Philadelphia and from there went to Frank inviting him on. Later I came back to Boston and went to Frank's house. I asked if there was any package for me and the elder Harrington handed me a bundle. It contained about $40 in silver."

STRANG WINS; CEDRINO SECOND IN AUTO RACE

WONDERFUL SPEED SHOWN IN GREAT CONTEST OVER BRIARCLIFF COURSE.

BRIARCLIFFE MANOR, N. Y., April 24.—Taking the lead on the first lap of the race, both on time allowance and as to position, Lewis Strang, driving a fifty-horsepower Isotta, won the 250-mile road race for the Briarcliffe cup to-day in the splendid time of five hours fourteen minutes thirteen and one-fifth seconds.

Cedrino, the favorite, made a desperate drive at the finish and cut down Strang's lead in great slices, but the best he was able to do was to finish second and take second honors with his 60-horsepower Fiat car in 5h. 21m. and 52s. Vaughan, driving a Stearns, finished third.

RECORD BREAKING SPEED.

Not an ambulance was used. Despite the great fears that had been entertained of disastrous smashups, owing to the rough ness and and crookedness of the course, the race was free from fatal accidents, and was pronounced one of the most successful road events ever run in this country. Mulford hit a tree and was put out of the running. Murphy lost a wheel and suffered the same fate. De Palma, best an axle and was forced to withdraw. Parker cracked a cylinder which put him out of the race, and Watson was bruised when his car was temporarily disabled, but in no instance was the occupant of the damaged car seriously hurt.

Perfect weather conditions were largely responsible for record-breaking speed, which, in view of the nature of the course, was really remarkable.

Strang's race was a consistent performance. Fourth away he overtook and passed Sartori, Cedrino and Lytle, who had preceded him at one-minute intervals, and was first to complete the circuit of the thirty-two-mile course. In each of the seven succeeding laps he held his lead steadily and finished strong.

CEDRINO A MARVEL.

Next to Strang the honors were all for Cedrino. The Italian had a bad season with his big Fiat on the first lap and was thirteenth to finish the first round, counting the allowance. Barring this one bad round, however, he drove a splendid race, and on the last two laps made the record of the day by covering the course in 37.16 and 36.48 respectively.

Lytle put up a good race, but the pace was too hot at the finish, and Vaughan, who, after a somewhat bad start, had plugged along very successfully, nowd him out for the third position. Sartori, whose performance was a bit disappointing to his friends, finished fifth. The race was then called off, none of the others finishing.

The position and official time of the men finishing was as follows:

First—Strang, 5:14:13 3-5.
Second—Cedrino, 5:21:05.
Third—Vaughn, 5:28:20.

BIG NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE HOUSE IS SAID TO BE INVOLVED FOR $1,000,000.

NEW YORK, April 24.—Just before the consolidation of Brooklyn wharves and warehouses, which included properties worth $30,000,000. He was vice-president of the Produce Exchange, the Produce Trust Company, and was succeeded in that office by General Isaac Thomas.

His first wife was Miss Anna Knox, who sued him for divorce in 1901 and obtained a decree. Mr. McIntyre afterward married Mrs. Lucy Vera Mitchell of Baltimore. Her stepdaughter, Lucy Mitchell, married Herbert Bayard Swope of Jersey dinner fame and is now the wife of Herman Bernard.

His stepson, Archie Mitchell, killed himself a short time ago by gas poisoning, after he had squandered a fortune of $1,000,000 left him by his millionaire stepfather, while his wife was participating in a New York celebration in the apartments of Dorothy Russell, daughter of Lillian Russell.

The house had membership in the New York Stock Exchange, the New York Cotton Exchange, the New York Coffee Exchange, the New York Produce Exchange, the New Orleans Cotton Exchange, the Chicago Board of Trade and the Liverpool Cotton Association.

It had branch offices in Chicago, Boston, Baltimore, Albany, Binghamton, Rochester, Syracuse and Hartford. The Boston office of the company is located at No. 15 Congress street and is in charge of J. M. Hudson, one of the partners of the firm.

SOUTH END BASEBALL GROUNDS, Boston, April 24.—With everything even-stephen between the Doves and Phillies, the two teams marched out on the field this afternoon, each team resolved to get a leg on the other fellow before nightfall. It was another fine day for the national game.

Old Hoss Kelley looked over his small staff of pitchers and rubbed his chin several times before telling Lindaman and Hoch (Flaherty to warm up. There were no encouraging reports from the four twirlers on the hospital list, and Old Hoss had to pick from the few sound flingers that were able to don a uniform.

Fans Root for Doves.

There was a large gathering of fans, who came to the grounds in the hope that the Doves would continue the hitting streak they developed yesterday. There's nothing like good stickwork by the home team to draw the enthusiasts.

"I see all the other members of the team are beginning to hit the ball," remarked Old Hoss Kelley as he grasped a bat and took his turn at the plate for a little practice, "and I guess it's about time I knocked out a few safe ones. I can't allow those youngsters to get the best of me or I'll have to put myself on the bench." With that he ripped off a three-bagger (in practice) to the rightfield corner of the grounds.

LINCOLN ILL IN PRISON HOSPITAL

PROVIDENCE, April 24.—Levi C. Lincoln, formerly treasurer and general manager of The Woonsocket Electric Machine & Power Company, who is now serving a two-year sentence in the State Prison for larceny from that concern, is confined in the prison hospital with erysipelas.

1,000 OUT OF WORK BY FIRE AT MILL

FALL RIVER, April 24.—As the result of a fire last night in the engine room of the Mechanics Cotton Mills, Fall River, 1,000 operatives will be thrown out of employment for several weeks. The fire started in the boiler room and gained access to the engine room, where the main belts and wheels were badly damaged. The loss is estimated at $15,000.

COMMITTEE OF MERCHANTS TO FIGHT MERGER

President Bernard J. Rothwell of the Boston Chamber of Commerce has appointed the following committee of five to represent the chamber's opposition to the merger.

Frank R. Shepard, president George G. Fox Company, Charlestown; William H. Lincoln, ex-president Boston Chamber of Commerce; Elwyn G. Preston, treasurer R. H. White Company; Herbert C. Hawley, J. Cushing & Co., Fitchburg; Franklin P. Shumway, president F. P. Shumway Company.

The duty of the committee is to appear before the proper committee of the Massachusetts Legislature to make known the opposition of the chamber to the contemplated control of the Boston & Maine by the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company and its opinion that the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad should not be permitted to retain the Boston & Maine Railroad stock which it now holds, and to take such further action in opposition as it may deem wise.

Because of criticism that the vote at Wednesday's meeting did not express the opinion of a majority of the members of the chamber, President Rothwell gave out the detailed result of the recent post card poll of the entire membership on the merger question.

The postal card poll, covering the membership of nearly 1000, brought in a total of 489 replies. Of these 338 were against the merger, 144 in favor of it and seven had to be thrown out for lack of signature or some other irregularity. That is, the poll showed a 70 per cent. preponderance against the merger, substantially the same result obtained by the voice vote at the meeting, where less than half as many voters were heard from.

SPRING AGAINST PARKWAY BILL

Arthur L. Spring, assistant corporation counsel for the city of Boston, to-day opposed the "omnibus park and boulevard" bill before the Ways and Means Committee of the Legislature. The bill was favorably reported by the Metropolitan Affairs Committee. It provides for the construction of a gigantic chain of boulevards and parkways in the Metropolitan district.

"The bill would saddle an enormous expense upon the cities of the Metropolitan district and upon Boston in particular," Mr. Spring told the committee. The work would cost anywhere from $2,000,000 to $0,000,000.

LOWELL, April 24.—At the thirty-first annual session of the Royal Arcanum of Massachusetts, which opened to-day, the following nominations were made: Grand regent, John J. Hogan of Lowell; vice-regent, Robert Sweet, Jr., of Melrose; orator, George H. Wiley of Malden; secretary, Herbert A. Boynton of Newtonville; treasurer, William L. Holt of Allston; chaplain, E. E. Hobson of Palmer; guide, Henry Jennings of Boston; warden, two candidates, Henry Shaw of Roxbury and Melville A. Arnold of Adams; sentry, three candidates, John J. White of Holyoke, Alexander M. Berger of Roxbury and Arthur N. Fouke of West Medford; trustees, Charles E. Stumckee of Boston, J. W. Brittain of Westboro, and Dr. Hugh Walker of Lowell.

LESLIE HARRIS RETURNS TO HUB

Leslie Harris returns to Boston next week. It is to laugh.

Those who heard and saw this ridiculously funny London comedian, monologist and pianist when he was here two months ago, probably recall yet how he made their sides ache with his droll stories, clever music, and, above, all, his mobile face, which he moves around to suit himself, so to speak.

Mr. Harris is booked for three appearances in Jordan Hall, Conservatory of Music Building. They are Wednesday evening, April 29; Thursday evening, April 30, and Saturday afternoon, May 2.

Reproduction of a historic painting, "The Prisoner," printed in handsome colors, on heavy paper, ready for framing, GIVEN FREE with next SUNDAY'S AMERICAN.

DOG SEPARATES SHERRY FAMILY

NEW YORK, April 24.—Louis Sherry, the Fifth avenue restaurant man, and his wife, Marie Bertha Sherry, to-day reached an agreement of separation. Mrs. Sherry left the handsome apartments in the great stone building at Forty-fourth street and Fifth avenue soon after the settlement, and it is stipulated that she will never visit the place of her husband after May 1, under any circumstances.

Accompanied only by a small French poodle, to which she is very much attached, Mrs. Sherry took an automobile and went to the home of her brother, C. A. Grandjean, near Yonkers, where she will live. The attachment of Mrs. Sherry for the little dog was one of the causes of disagreement between herself and her husband.

How Dr. Spitzka is studying the brain of Chester Gillette, hoping to read the murderer's answers to poor "Billy" Brown's appealing letters, graphically told in next SUNDAY'S AMERICAN.

GEN. LINEVITCH WAR HERO, DEAD

ST. PETERSBURG, April 24.—Lieutenant General Linevitch, aide-de-camp to Emperor Nicholas, and commander of the First Manchurian Army, died last night from pneumonia.

General Linevitch was sixty-three years of age. For a time in 1904 he was governor of the Amur territory, but later assumed command of the Russian forces at Vladivostok under Viceroy Alexieff, replacing General Kuropatkin as commander-in-chief of the forces on March 17, 1905. General Linevitch was in the battle of Mukden and other important engagements, in which he was reported as displaying great bravery.

TRAIL OF BLOOD LED TO HOSPITAL

LYNN, April 24.—With blood flowing freely from a wound over the heart and leaving a trail of crimson on the sidewalk as she passed, Mary Carroll walked all the way from her home at No. 63 Friend street to the Relief Hospital.

According to the story she told to the surgeons she had a dispute with a Greek, who drew a knife and stabbed her.

TORNADO RAZES TOWNS; LEAVES WAKE OF DEATH

TERRIFIC STORM SWEEPS THROUGH WEST; BODIES CARRIED FOR MILES.

LINCOLN, Neb., April 24.—A terrific hurricane, which swept through the west of Texas to Nebraska late yesterday afternoon, razed numerous towns in its path, killed several persons and injured many others.

Cloudbursts, hail and lightning accompanied the storm in some localities and scores had narrow escapes with their lives from the floods which followed in the wake of the great wind and heavy fall of rain.

Mines in Joplin, Mo., were filled with water, the workers just managing to escape death by a hasty climb to upper levels. Railroads in Missouri and Nebraska were put out of commission for several days. Houses were knocked flat by the wind or uncoofed, trees were uprooted and the devastation in the path of the tornado is reported as complete.

At Bancroft three persons were killed by a cyclone which struck Cumming and Thurston counties. Others were injured and several houses were destroyed. The tornado struck the home of John Magieson, and then swiped up into the air taking the wreckage of the house and both Mr. and Mrs. Magieson. Both were killed, their bodies being carried a mile. George Walker and family were at lunch when the twister struck their house. Three of the family were seriously injured. The body of a baby was picked up in the road ten miles from Bancroft.

A storm in the neighborhood of Rico, ten miles south of Enola, Tenn., killed three negroes and injured three white people. Several houses were blown away.

At Walls, Miss., three were killed and many hurt.

TELLS OF KISSING BEE IN HAINES' HAPPY HOME

CAMBRIDGE DOCTOR IN COURT, DESCRIBES QUARREL OVER STICKPIN.

How a regular kissing bee was on all the time in the Haines home in Cambridge when everything went smoothly, how he kissed his wife every time he went and returned, no matter how long or short the interval, was told by Dr. Lincoln Haines, defendant in the celebrated Haines suit.

The trial, which has been replete with sensational features, has now been in progress for three days. Proof of collusion between the opposing counsel, A. M. Lyman for Dr. Haines and Fitzhugh Chase for Mrs. Haines, both of whom have stubbornly contested every inch of ground covered, has delayed the proceedings.

Still another interesting feature was added to the trial yesterday when Mrs. Frances R. Haines, the beautiful lotice married woman whose name is the storm centre of sensational testimony, took an active part in conducting her own case. She sat with the court room seats inside the bar to the table of her attorney.

Both Beautiful Women.

That her assistance was of material benefit to her case was evident from the points brought out by Attorney Chase in his questioning. She took down notes. She told questions for her attorney to ask the witnesses.

Both Mrs. Haines and her sister, Mrs. Esther Carter, are exceptionally beautiful women. Mrs. Haines was gowned in a stunning brown suit, large picture hat with a big, overhanging black plume. Mrs. Carter wore a cemet gray tailor made suit with a Merry Widow hat.

Dr. Haines was on the witness stand nearly all of both sessions, less than one half hour being given up to two witness for rebuttal testimony. The arguments will begin to-day.

Dr. Haines testified, in part, as follows:

"I kissed my wife very frequently. I don't think that I ever left the house or returned without kissing her. I kissed on going and returning from work, errands, visits, trips, in fact, every time I left her.

"Our trouble over my stickpin was brought about by my wife asking me if I wouldn't give it as a present to my brother-in-law, George G. Carter of Calcago. I replied that I didn't object to giving him the pin, but that I would rather give a new and better pin if I was to make a present.

Quarrel Over Stickpin.

"That request was made by Mrs. Haines while we were in Young's Hotel. Later, in my home, at No. 10 Acacia street, Cambridge, Mrs. Haines asked me at the dinner table to remove the pin from my tie. I refused. She then said to my mother: 'This pin was given to him by his mistress and the wearing of it is an insult.'

"Mrs. Carter left the table crying. Mrs. Haines later said that under no circumstances would she live with me. She and her sister then left the house and left Cambridge.

"Well, I saw her later in a Boston hotel. I said to her: 'You have exploded your little bomb and nobody was hurt but yourself. You went to see Lee Rhodes in a hysterical frenzy to wash your dirty linen and the result is that you have lost what few friends you have in Boston.'

"Her sister said that she didn't see why Mrs. Haines didn't live happily with me. She said that I had only a few little faults and that personally she could get along beautifully with me.

"Mrs. Carter said to me: 'Why don't you go to your wife and put your arms about her, tell her that you love her and ask for her love and sympathy?'

"I replied that I felt that an apology was due me and that I was not in a kissing mood. I also made the remark that if Mrs. Haines left me I wouldn't support her in Chicago or anywhere else."

"How much money have you given her?" queried Attorney Lyman.

"I gave her $632 in cash and checks on the International Trust Company from March 18 to October 5, 1907. I also spent $310 on her for entertainment. My monthly salary is $333.13.

"I was once told by Mrs. Haines in her home in Chicago that she owned bonds. She also said that she had stock in a coffee and rubber plantation from which she expected a $200 monthly income.

Chicago Pastor on Stand.

Testimony was also given by Dr. Haines to the effect that his wife had "hysterical outbreaks," tried to beat her head against the wall in their room in the Touraine Hotel, had assaulted him and left long finger marks on his chest.

Dr. Gilbert W. Leddon of No. 223 East Forty-fourth street, Chicago, rector in the Episcopalian Church on Madison avenue, was also on the stand. He testified:

"I married Dr. Haines and Mrs. Haines in the Auditorium Hotel, Chicago. I have known Mrs. Haines for three years, living that time in the same house with her, but never saw anything unusual in her conduct.

"I never heard of her going out auto riding with wealthy men and returning in the morning hours. I never saw only one outburst of rage on her part. I never knew of her taking any steps toward self-destruction.

Presents From Chicago Men.

"I thought that she received a kimono at her she returned to Chicago a short while after her marriage. I have only seen her take one drink of liquor, and that was on the night of her wedding.

"I knew of two presents that were given her by Chicago gentlemen. One was a necklace, at her birthday, and the other was a ring at Xmas."

Mrs. Euphemia McInnes of Boston testified that she has known Mrs. Haines for the past five or six years.

"I never heard her use any profanity. Her temper has been even, and I have never seen her with blazing, glaring eyes or clinched fists."

"Don't Give Up the Ship."

WHEEL BURST; TWO DEAD.

CHICAGO, April 24.—The bursting of a flywheel at the plant of the North Shore Electric Light Company at Waukegan caused the death of two men and probably fatally injured two others and brought darkness to a number of North Shore suburbs.

ASTOR GIVES LAWRENCE FLAG TO GREAT BRITAIN

Heads of Boston patriotic societies and clergy and laymen interested in patriotic movements express different views to-day upon the legal and moral right of William Waldorf Astor in presenting to the Royal United Service Museum, in London, the flag of the frigate Chesapeake, captured on June 1, 1813, by H. M. S. Shannon in the memorable battle off Boston Harbor.

Some declare the flag should have remained in America, and while the purchaser had every legal right to do as he pleased with it, there still remained a moral and patriotic right that he should have considered. Others say Great Britain is entitled to it. Rev. Philip S. Henson said:

"As Astor bought it and handed it, I think the flag has ceased to be of any value to America or Americans."

Rev. Mr. Henson said:

"As Astor bought it and handed it, I think the flag has ceased to be of any value to America or Americans. Astor is not an American. I wouldn't bother about it. The game is not worth the gamble. Astor gave it to Britain, and now let Britain keep it."

Colonel Charles K. Darling: "The British captured the flag in a fair battle and were entitled to it, although, of course, it would be nice to have had it remain in America. But then the flag lost its character as a prize of war when it came into private possession. We are satisfied that if the British did get it, somebody had to pay a good price for it. There's satisfaction in that, you know."

Builds Up Castle.

William Waldorf Astor has in recent years given millions of American money to British charities and institutions. In the first flight after his allegiance to the Crown, he gave more than $1,000,000 to charities and various public enterprises. Boston Harbor when the Shannon, more heavily armed, appeared and offered battle.

The Chesapeake was disabled, Captain Lawrence was mortally wounded. As he was carried below he shouted:

"Boys, don't give up the ship."

The second officer was wounded and 149 of the crew were killed before the frigate was captured. The Shannon towed her prize to Halifax, England was jubilant.

"Let England Keep It."

"I do not think Mr. Astor had every right to give that flag to Britain," said the Rev. Herbert S. Johnson to a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter. "He had the legal right to do it, of course, but what about the moral right and the patriotic right? The flag belongs here in America, and here it should remain forever. That's all I care to say about it."

Rev. Mr. Henson said:

"As Astor bought and handed it, I think the flag has ceased to be of any value to America or Americans. Astor is not an American. I wouldn't bother about it. The game is not worth the gamble. Astor gave it to Britain, and now let Britain keep it."

William Waldorf Astor has in recent years given millions of American money to British charities and institutions. In the first flight after his allegiance to the Crown, he gave more than $1,000,000 to charities and various public enterprises. One of his works still under way in England is the restoration of the castle of Hever.

Mr. Astor has spent hundreds of thousands of dollars to make the place exactly the same as at the time of the residence of Anne Boleyn, who became the wife of Henry VIII.

COUNTESS VON MOLTKE TO LIVE IN WASHINGTON

Boston society is very much interested in the report that the Countess von Moltke, nee Miss Cornelia Van Rensselaer Thayer, daughter of Nathaniel Thayer of this city, is likely to return to her native land to reside for several years. Her husband is stated, according to the statement by diplomats abroad, for the post of Danish Minister to the United States.

While this will mean that the Countess will have Washington for an official residence she would be able to spend a great deal of time in this city and at Home Stead, the Thayer estate in Lancaster, where she wedded the Count, who is a relative of the great German warlord, on June 29 last. The Thayers are one of the richest and most influential families in New England and the father of the Countess is a leading banker.

She was a member of the Vincent Club, and one of the most popular of girls in Boston, Newport and New York society.

She met Count von Moltke while abroad a little more than a year ago. She is tall and graceful, and her blond beauty contrasted against the Danish nobleman. He is not counted wealthy, according to American standards, but is a man of fine appearance and distinguished manner. His international marriage, it was assumed at the time, would help him to advancement in diplomacy. When it was announced in Copenhagen that Count Brun, the present Danish Minister in this country, would be transferred from Washington to London, it was assumed that Count von Moltke would go next to Washington in his place. European governments like to be represented in Washington by diplomats with American wives. When Countess von Moltke lived in Boston she was very devoted to the Children's Hospital, in which her maternal grandfather was one of its founders.

FIND AGED MAN SHOT DEAD WITH PISTOL IN HAND

Special to the Boston American.

WORCESTER, April 24.—The dead body of a distinguished looking old man, found early to-day with a bullet hole through his head on the Lake avenue drive, about four miles from this city, furnishes a mystery which the police are trying hard to solve.

Although the dead man clutched in his right hand a 32-calibre revolver from which two cartridges had been discharged, the officers at work on the case are not fully convinced that it was a case of suicide.

There is absolutely no clew to the man's identity. His clothing was of the finest quality and there was everything in his appearance to indicate that he was a man of wealth and social position. His pockets were empty save for a purse containing $10 in gold and bills which was served no doubt of his vest. He was about sixty-five years old and weighed about 160 pounds.

The body lay close to the car tracks and was discovered by the motorman on an early morning car. The police surgeon who was summoned said the man had been dead several hours.

Edward B. Matthews, of No. 42 Pleasant street, a watchman who was on duty at the White City only a short distance from where the body was found, says that he was startled at midnight last night by a revolver shot, but did not take the trouble to investigate.

ANNIVERSARY MASS FOR F. P. O'CONNELL

An anniversary memorial mass for the repose of the soul of the late Frederic P. O'Connell, the baseball writer of this city, who died just one year at West Baden, Ind., while covering the Southern trip of the Boston teams, will be celebrated Monday morning at 8 o'clock in St. Peter's Church, Meeting House Hill, Dorchester.

HARVARD GRAMMAR ALUMNI ASSOCIATION

Former pupils of Harvard Grammar School will meet in the school hall next Tuesday evening to form an alumni association. The proposal of an alumni association for the Harvard Grammar School came from Miss Sarah Leonard, a teacher of the school, who made the suggestion at the recent banquet of the class of 1902. A committee of the grammar has already been organized, with James J. Mullen, Jr., as chairman.

SCHOONER IS ON THE ROCKS

CHATHAM, April 24.—The Annie Eva Hooper, Captain A. H. Holmes, St. John, N. B., to New York, British three-masted schooner, lumber laden, which went ashore in a dangerous locality on the southeast part of the Handkerchief Shoal, just before sunset, is in a dangerous location. Her crew is still aboard and are trying to save the vessel to-day.

FISHERMAN IS LOST AT SEA

GLOUCESTER, April 24.—With her flag at half-mast, the schooner Niagara, Captain Fred Thompson, one of the Gloucester fresh halibut fleet, arrived in port to-day and reported the loss of Charles Peterson, forty-three years, married, a well known local fisherman.

Swept overboard by a giant wave which washed over the schooner's deck, Peterson was drowned off Sable Island on Easter Sunday. Two dories were put out after Peterson, but he sank before they could reach him.

250,000 SEE GIANT AUTO TROPHY RACE

Desperate Struggle for Supremacy by Machines on Briarcliff Course.

ACCIDENTS BEGAN EARLY

Fourth—Lytle, 5:39:15.
Fifth—Sartori, 5:53:45.

The average time made by Strang on his eight laps was 29 minutes 15 seconds.

It was estimated that at least 250,000 people watched the race for the Briarcliff trophy, scattered along the dangerous and torturous course of over thirty miles, the spectators were thrilled repeatedly by exhibitions of daring and skilful driving.

Desperate chances were taken in bursts of speed and playing for position.

The course is oddong, and is laid out in the northeast part of West Chester County, the lower end being in East View, and the upper arch at Croton Lake.

WATSON FIRST HURT.

The first accident after the start came when at the turn at East View car No. 22, Simplex, driven by Willie Watson, with Thomas Cotter as mechanician, skidded on a mound and turned a complete somersault, throwing out and badly cutting both men about the head and body.

When the accident occurred the spectators who lined the course at this one of the most dangerous turns, crowded into the roadway and, overcoming all efforts of militia and deputy sheriffs, blocked the passage of car No. 18, a Renault, driven by Bloch, and held it up for about five minutes.

Sartori, in car No. 1, a Bianchi, suffered a mishap in the first round. His car spread-eagled and plunged into the ditch, which, however, parted before it so quickly that no one was injured. Quick work on the part of Sartori and his mechanician got the car in order again in five minutes and he sped on his way amid an outburst of cheers.

Some of the early casualties reported follow.

A. Smith Hopkins, superintendent of the East View almshouse, dropped dead of heart disease as the result of excitement just before the start.

W. Watson, driver of the Simplex, jarred internally and big toe broken when his car overturned.

Henry Wilcox, spectator, run down by car near start, right leg broken.

Washington I. Kirkpatrick, fell down bank while watching race, left ankle broken.

Mrs. Charles Uhrsom, badly burned when her husband's automobile caught fire in parkage near start.

It was exactly 5:07 a. m. when Starter Fred Wagner, counting backwards, shouted the "Four, three, two, one," which sent Sartori in a Bianchi car away, and started the 256-mile race for the Briarcliff trophy cup. It was 5:28 when Watson, the twenty-second and last starter, in a Simplex, got the slap on the shoulder which sent him away, and the race was fairly on. Twinkle the lotter in the main grandstand were filled with a gathering of well-known auto lovers and society folk, and when the dawn finally broke on a perfect spring morning it revealed a wonderful scene of life and color.

Though the race was scheduled to start at 5:30, the crowd about the starting line had been at work a half-hour's work was required of the officials and deputy sheriffs before the course could be cleared sufficiently to permit the start.

Cedrino a Favorite at Start.

Each of the crews received a volley of applause as they whirled up to the scratch, but the ovation of the morning went to Barney Oldfield, when the track champion, in a huge green Stearns and bearing the hoodoo No. 13, moved up to the mark. But while Oldfield was the popular favorite, the experts, who were not playing on sentiment, picked Cedrino, in his Fiat, as the most likely winner.

It was thirty-one minutes after the last car had been sent on its way when a toole blast, and the long drawn cry of "car coming," announced the approach of the leader's car driven by Strang, the first to complete the first lap.

The first thrill of horror was sent through the stands as the last of the cars finished the first lap, when the news was brought to the judges that the bridge over Murray's creek had weakened and that the next car might plunge through it. Carpenters were rushed to the point and all cars were slowed down until repairs were made.

The order of the finishes in the first lap were as follows:

Strang, Lytle, Cedrino, Leland, Sartori, Parker, Vaughan, Murphy, Poole, Mulford, Michener, Oldfield, DePalma, Swanour, Hilliard, Roberts, Harding, Robertson, Bloch, Bergdoll, Bernin.

Watson, the twenty-second starter, was already out of the contest.

At the end of the first round Strang was not only leading in the race, but had a lead of fourteen seconds on the lapsed time, having completed the circuit in the record time of 30 minutes 42 seconds.

Seymour, in the Simplex, was second in the lapsed time, with a mark of 39:56, and Lytle, in an Apperson, was third, having done the run in 40:00.

Many Changes in Position.

The positions of the other men in the race on lapsed time at the end of the first round was: Poole, 41:03; Murphy, 41:31; Vaughan, 42:12; Leland, 43:16; De Palma, 43:33; Oldfield, 43:47; Harding, 43:54; Parker, 44:00; Mulford, 44:17; Cedrino, 45:01; Hilliard, 46; Robertson, 47:48; Sartori, 48:14; Bloch, 48:16; Michener, 48:20; Bergdoll, 52:02; Roberts, 52:35; Bernin, 59:36.

The second round was uneventful save that it resulted in several changes in position in the race and also in a number of changes on the leader board. Lytle, who in four men to cross the line in the first lap held their position at the end of the second leg. Strang still held the lead on lapsed time, with a mark for the two laps (eighty-four miles) of 1 hours, 18 minutes and 5 seconds.

The lapsed time on the third round showed that Vaughan had been hitting it up and had succeeded in ousting Lytle from third place. Parker fared badly and dropped way behind the leaders.

Watson and his mechanic patched up their battered Simplex and re-entered the race, completing the first round at 8:35:21. The car is clearly out of the race, but Watson got a cheer for his gameness.

The fourth round resulted in an exciting brush right before the official grandstand in which three of the occupants of the cars were slowed down until repairs were made.

The lapsed time on the third round showed that Vaughan had been hitting it up and had succeeded in ousting Lytle from third place. Parker fared badly and dropped way behind the leaders.

The fourth round resulted in an exciting brush right before the official grandstand in which three of the occupants of the cars were slowed down until repairs were made.

The same lap resulted in an accident which put Murphy and the Maja out of the race for a time. The Maja swerved off the course and both Murphy and his mechanic, Finch, were hurled out and slightly injured. They are working on the car and expect to re-enter the race.

The completion of the fourth round showed that Poole had increased from fifth to second, Parker, Murphy and Watson are now temporarily out of the race.

The fifth lap brought about a few changes in the leaders. Strang had his own, while Pool in the lead, fell to third place, giving way to Bert Lytle in the Apperson. Guy Vaughan retained one position, going into fourth place, there being but six seconds between him and Fred Poole for third honors, while Lytle held his advantage in second place by but a few seconds more.

Fast Work in Sixth.

In the sixth lap some extra good work was done by both Vaughan and Cedrino, who forced their way into second and third places respectively, while Poole fell back to fourth, and Lytle, who was considered as dangerous as any of the four, fell back to fifth. These five cars formed an advance guard all its own, being separated from the main party by several minutes. The race was between them, with everything in favor of Strang, who was thirteen minutes ahead of his nearest competitor. Away back in the rank Seymour, driving the Simplex, was fighting hard and still to be considered as a dangerous man in the game. He was driving pluckily, while Oldfield was another man who was rendering a good account of himself. The Hol-Tan was likewise doing well.

The standing of the eight leaders and their time at the end of the sixth lap follows:

Strang, 3:55:04; Vaughan, 4:06:47; Cedrino, 4:07:01; Poole, 4:07:39; Lytle, 4:08:11; Leland, 4:20:50; Sartori, 4:29:51; Michener, 4:31:24.

When Strang finished across the line at the conclusion of the seventh round and started away on the last leg of his race he still had a lead of eleven minutes, but Cedrino, driving a wonderful race, was pushing him and received a tremendous cheer as he set out on his final spurt. The standing of the leaders at the end of the seventh and next to the last lap was:

Strang, 4:53:47; Cedrino, 4:44:17; Vaughan, 4:45:39; Lytle, 4:47:35; Seymour, 4:50:50; Leland, 5:01:05.

MIDDLESEX GRANT NIGHT

The Middlesex club will observe "Grant night" at the Hotel Brunswick on Monday, April 27. There will be a reception from 5:30 and dinner at 6 and the guests will include Acting Governor Eben S. Draper, Major-General Frederick D. Grant, Lieutenant Ulysses S. Grant, Corporal James Tanner, ex-Commander-in-Chief of the G. A. R., Colonel Edward Anderson, late of the Twelfth Indiana Cavalry, and Rev. F. W. Henson, D. D., of Tremont Temple.

The festivities will be in observance of the birthday anniversary of General and President Grant, and the occasion will be graced by the presence of a son and a grandson of the late General. An orchestra will furnish music and there will be singing by Colonel Olin's veteran vocalists, known as "The Gang."

URQUHART BACK MULLINS QUEST AGAIN TAKEN UP

Chief Says Useful Information Facts Were Gleaned on St. John's Trip.

INQUEST TO BE RESUMED

Chief of Police Thomas O. D. Urquhart of Arlington, returned from his trip to St. John's, Newfoundland, told a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter to-day on the trip to investigate into the murder of Annie Mullins in Squires Field, Arlington, would be resumed with renewed vigor.

"Well, I am glad to get back from St. John's," the Chief said, "I am also glad that I went there. We learned some things that will help considerably later on. We had the same facts confronting us I should take the trip all over again.

"We are not discouraged by the way things have turned out. If anything we have new courage. We are starting in to-day to look into the case from another viewpoint.

"Practically, however, we shall go all over the mystery again, starting at the beginning and do it right. The matter will be cleared up if it is within human power to do it. So long as there is anything for us to work on we are going to work."

Chief Urquhart and Fire Engineer Byrnes, who accompanied him to St. John's, spent most of their time to-day going over the evidence that had been collected during their absence.

They will see District Attorney Higgins this afternoon in regard to having the inquest, which was postponed twice on account of the absence of the two officers, resumed at once. It will probably go on early next week.

MRS. BATES RE-ELECTED ON D. A. R. SLATE

WASHINGTON, April 24.—After eight hours' strenuous work in the D. A. R. tellers, announcement was made to-day of the election of the following vice-presidents general:

Mrs. William A. Sunnot of Virginia; Mrs. Theodore C. Bates of Massachusetts (re-elected), Mrs. Drayton W. Bushnell of Iowa (re-elected), Mrs. Ira Dale Sage of Georgia, Mrs. Truman H. Newberry of Michigan (re-elected), Mrs. John B. Sterling of Connecticut, Mrs. William E. Stanley of Kansas, Mrs. Egbert Jones of Mississippi, Mrs. E. Gaylord Putnam of New Jersey, Mrs. Stile Ewing Bunnell (acting of Kentucky (re-elected).

It was a signal victory for the "administration" faction.

BRITISH ARMY AFTER TRIBES

SIMLA, April 24.—A mixed force of British and Indian troops is being rapidly mobilized near Peshawur for another punitive expedition against the fanatical tribes who recently have been raiding and looting villages on the Peshawur border.

The prime movers in the present rising are the Mohmands, a Pathan tribe, occupying the hills between Peshawur and Kopat. About 10,000 raiders are gathered at Kanail, twenty miles from Peshawur. The situation is seriously complicated by the presence in this territory of Afghans, who are flocking in large numbers to the standard of the Mullahs. Several Cabul and Afghan are said already to have crossed the Kabul river and to be on their way to join the malcontents.

BURKHARDTS IN $23,025 SUIT

Gottlieb F. Burkhardt, Count Ferdinand Von Schoiley and Charles Frederick, as trustees for the Burkhardt Brewing Company, have brought suit against Herman F. and Harriet I. Burkhardt of Brookline, to recover the sum of $23,025, with interest from 1904.

They allege that Burkhardt made an agreement with them by which he was to turn over whatever money he should receive from real estate acquired by him from the estate of Pauline W. Burkhardt. This, they allege, he failed to do. Hence suit.

RUSSIA ORDERS FIVE DREADNOUGHTS

LONDON, April 24.—The Russian government, according to a trade journal, has ordered five warships, each one to be larger than the Dreadnought, from a firm of Clyde shipbuilders.

SOLDIER MATES ESCORT BODY OF DEAD GENERAL

Brig. Gen. Lawrence N. Dunbrenner, one of the oldest and most popular military men in New England, was buried from the Church of the Sacred Heart, East Boston, this morning. The service, a High Mass, was said by Rev. John Heffernan of South Framingham, who was one of the Major's oldest friends and who attended him in his last illness.

The coffin was draped in the national colors, almost hidden by a huge bouquet of Easter lilies presented by the members of the Major's staff of the old 6th Regiment. The pall bearers, all members of the 6th Regiment, were as follows: J. J. McCarthy, Capt. of the Fort, Lieut. Col. J. F. Harvey, Capt. H. B. Clapp, Major W. L. Steadman, Capt. George A. Sanborn, Department Commander, G. A. R., D. N. L. Greason and George H. Reid of the 6th Regiment. J. H. Edgerly, G. W. Dutton, W. A. Snow, C. Thompson, D. H. Gleason and C. W. C. Rhodes represented the Loyal Legion. The body will be interred at Skilling, N. C., for interment on Sunday, April 26th.

LOOT BANK OF $4,000.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 24.—Masked robbers raided the telephone office of Bandana, in western Kentucky, and compelled the cashier of the Ballard Bank to go to the bank, open the vault and give them $4,000.

1,000 DANCE WITH H. & D. CHAMPIONS

The Houghton & Dutton Athletic Association, whose baseball team was champions of the City Mercantile League for 1907, is assured to-day of funds for the coming season, through proceeds of the baseball benefit dance given in Copley Hall.

Five hundred couples, employes of the Houghton & Dutton Company, with their friends, attended the dance. The hall was quickly decked with evergreens, with electrical effects arranged by H. Schaeffer, the company's electrician. A feature of the evening was the moonlight dance, in which the lights were lowered, and the dancers glided about under moon and star illumination cleverly arranged.

Treasurer Alexander McGregor for the company congratulated the association, and predicted a repetition of its success of last year.

The officers of the association are: President, E. P. Davis; vice-president and treasurer, E. P. Morse; secretary, C. P. Welder; financial secretary, J. B. McKeon; board of directors, Messrs. Schaeffer, Lassiter, Thomas, Richards, Thurber, McNamara and Seidoni; committee on baseball, Messrs. Curtis, Schaefer and Doyle; committee on entertainment, Messrs. Thurber, Richards and Torrey.

The ball last evening was under the direction of Fleur Director E. D. Davis, assisted by E. P. Morse, S. H. Thurber, T. Lassiter, J. W. Berk, H. F. Torrey, Mrs. T. H. Albee and the Misses M. V. Hardy, J. Taylor, Mae Kenney, E. A. McGrath.

W. R. HEARST WILL SPEAK ON 'THE ELECTION'

NEW YORK, April 24.—It was announced to-day by a member of the non-partisan committee, having in charge the arrangements of the second annual banquet of the Independence party, that the subject of the address to be made by William Randolph Hearst at the Hotel Knickerbocker next Monday evening will be "The Coming Election."

It is also expected that John Temple Graves will speak on "Independence and Liberty"; Charles A. Walsh, on "Party Domination," and John D. Spellman of Vermont on "Independence as Our Birthright." The banquet committee also received word from Gesner Williams of Los Angeles, national committeeman of the Independence party, that he would attend the banquet and speak on "Politics, Present and Future." The subjects of other addresses will be announced later by the committee.

Charles A. Dawson, national committeeman from Kentucky, will attend the banquet and represent that State, and R. M. Isherwood of Indiana will also be there to tell of the Independence party's fight against corruption in the home of Tom Taggart.

The committee has practically completed every arrangement in connection with the banquet.

EPIDEMIC OF TYPHOID GAINS 32 NEW CASES

Four Deaths Reported Yesterday Make Total of 28 Fatalities from Dread Disease.

CASES IN EAST BOSTON

The Boston Board of Health is facing an epidemic of typhoid fever in the East Boston section of the city which promises to rival that in Jamaica Plain, where there have been 240 cases and eighteen deaths since April 1. Thirty-two new cases of the disease were reported to the board today, as against eleven yesterday, and there have been four deaths in the past twenty-four hours, of which three were in Jamaica Plain and one in Roxbury.

Sixteen New Cases in East Boston.

Of the cases reported for the twenty-four hours ending at 10 o'clock to-day, sixteen were from East Boston, nine from Jamaica Plain, three from Dorchester, three from Roxbury and one from the city proper. This is an increase of fourteen in twenty-four hours in the East Boston section and five in Jamaica Plain. Since April 1, when the first outbreak of the disease was noted, 360 cases have been reported, of which 349 have been from Jamaica Plain and 114 from East Boston. Twenty-eight deaths have occurred in all; eighteen in Jamaica Plain, five in East Boston, three in the city proper, one in Roxbury and one in Brighton. Twenty more cases of typhoid have occurred in the twenty-four days of this month than occurred in all of last year.

The Board of Health has insisted for several days that the epidemic had died out, but to-day Dr. Durgin admitted that he was a little bit surprised at the large number of cases and said:

Health Board Seeks Cause.

"We shall make a careful inquiry into all of the sixteen cases in the East Boston section to ascertain the cause. In my opinion a large number of the cases now coming in are secondary cases, that is cases passed along by an infected person to others. The same I believe is true of the continuation of the disease in Jamaica Plain."

CHELSEA MINISTER WARS ON HEARTLESS LANDLORDS

REV. H. W. STEBBINS EXPOSES RAPACITY THAT DOUBLED PRICE OF RENTS AFTER FIRE.

As the result of the fight made by Rev. Herbert Stebbins against the Chelsea landlords who have raised their rents, the assessors of the city, it was stated by a prominent city official to-day, would raise the taxation, and steps are to be taken to push this matter to a head.

Complaint was made that several avaricious house owners seeing a chance for profit had increased the price of rents soon after the fire.

The Rev. Mr. Stebbins, hearing of the fire last Sunday afternoon, immediately went to Chelsea, where he acted as pastor of the First Congregational Church nearly four years ago and started a general information bureau. In this work he was informed of the rise in rents made by a number of Chelsea landlords.

Story Confirmed.

Personally the Rev. Mr. Stebbins went to investigate. He found the reports to be true. He saw Chief of Police Hanson. The police could do nothing save assist in the work of investigation.

"This is outrageous," declared the minister when, after a long day's work, he examined the list of complaints he had looked into.

"Done them in," he continued, "but I mean to find out.

"All day long I have been looking into these complaints. What do I find? This: that one poor widow with two children who occupied two small rooms and has paid her $7 a month regularly is informed by her landlord that she must now pay double that amount. She must pay this until $14 every month or out.

"Where is she going to? There are not any houses to let in Chelsea and it costs money to move even a few things. I suppose there is the possibility that unless she pays the increase asked for her goods will be put out in the street. That's one of the cases that I'm going to attend to at once.

"I have received another of a similar nature, only this woman has seven children. She's a widow also.

"Here's another one. A man has been paying twelve dollars a month rental for a small store. Now stores in Chelsea are at a premium just at present, and men who have been in business want to get started just as quick as they can. This landlord knows this and immediately raises the twelve dollars to sixty dollars.

Police Aid Investigation.

"Every complaint that has been brought to me I have looked up, or am looking up, and am trying to see what can be done to help these poor people out in the emergency. The police have given me the use of quarters in the police station and are turning over all the complaints they receive to me.

People in Chelsea know the Rev. Mr. Stebbins as a fighter. When he occupied the pulpit of the First Congregational Church as an acting pastor he found out that the licenses of liquor dealers were being violated. He went before the License Commissioners and made complaint.

He didn't receive what he considered sufficient attention and went to the chief of police. Saloons were visited and to a number of cases violations of the law were discovered. There were quick changes.

Steadily the fund for the relief of the Chelsea sufferers is climbing upward. Loe, Higginson & Co., treasurers of the fund, report to-day that it now amounts to $217,700.78.

The list of missing was very much reduced yesterday when at the close of the days business at the Information Bureau in the High School Building it was found six sixty people had been accounted for, leaving now a total of twenty missing.

At the inquest held in the Chelsea Police Court ten witnesses were heard. These witnesses were all boys between the ages of fifteen and twenty years. State Officer Silas Smith, who is conducting the investigation, said this morning: "As yet we have not got any vital information, but we are investigating every suspicious fire and the ground is being thoroughly covered for any evidence that will enable us to clear up the matter."

AIDED INJURED WHILE FLAMES SWEPT CHELSEA

Great catastrophies like the Chelsea fire always develop heroes whose names are noticed.

One of these instances came to the notice of these instances came to the notice of the BOSTON AMERICAN'S Bureau of Information in the form of a letter from the corner of Broadway and Second street. The drug store is right at the edge of the burned district. While the flames were sweeping the city, firemen, policemen, and the general public were hastening to escape to this place to get treatment for burns and injuries.

Lester C. Morris, the proprietor, and his assistant, Thomas Allen, had made up their minds that the place was doomed.

"No," said Morris, "we will stay here as long as we could, and give what help we could to the poor unfortunates. We stayed, and fortunately the fire did not reach us, so here we are."

About noon Dr. F. B. Gunter, who lost his instruments and everything else when he lost his home at No. 17 Fifth street, dropped into the drug store. Seeing Morris and Allen hard at work and a big line of sufferers waiting, the doctor pulled off his coat and went to work aiding the sufferers. It was long after midnight on that memorable Sunday night before these three men had a chance to get even a breathing spell. All their labor they gave for nothing. On the two days following they did the same, although they were not kept quite so busy. All during the week Dr. Gunter treated cases free of charge. He proffered his services to the relief committee, but was kept busy treating individual charity cases that came to him.

TOBACCO TAG FAD GROWING

The tags on certain brands of tobacco have considerable intrinsic value because they are redeemed by the American Tobacco Company with gifts in exchange. Tag saving has become a practice of thousands and thousands of consumers. The lists of presents is so long and varied that every taste must be suited. Among the brands that have redeemable tags are Standard Navy, Master Workman, Tinsley's, Town Talk, Meyer Sunshine and Ivy, Spear Head, Sickle, Sailor's Pride, and about a dozen others. An idea of the value of the tags is given when it is stated that an English steel razor may be obtained by saving only fifty tags.

Dealers throughout the country are laying in stocks of presents in order to redeem tags, and in places where no dealers are supplied the American Tobacco Company is providing catalogues and sending by mail to tag savers the articles they desire which are in the list.

$33,000 BILLERICA FIRE.

LOWELL, April 24.—Fire destroyed the Elmer E. Cole grain elevator and grist mill at Bennet Hall corners, also the residence of Mrs. Nellie Morton in Farmer's Line, Billerica Centre. Loss, $35,000; partly insured.

NEWS OF LABOR.

The Building Trades Section of the Boston Central Labor Union will hold its first meeting in the new headquarters to-night, at No. 380 Harrison avenue. The hall is one of the handsomest in the city.

That this hall will be in steady demand is shown by the fact that the following unions will meet there and take up nearly all the evenings: Bricklayers' No. 3, every Monday; Sheet Metal Workers' No. 17, every Tuesday; Stonecutters' No. 9, every Wednesday; Hoisting and Portable Engineers' No. 4, every Thursday, and the Building Trades Section, the second and fourth Fridays.

There is a smaller hall, capable of seating fully 200.

NOTES.

The Council of Federated Trades of the New Haven system will hold a conference May 11 with General Superintendent Higgins and Superintendent of Motive Power Wilder for the purpose of adjusting a wage scale and rules for the shops.

Bloomfield, N. J., Typographical union organized for membership last night.

Bartenders, No. 186, have raised a special meeting for Sunday at No. 380 Harrison avenue, to take further action to secure the fifteen members who lost through the fire.

Charles W. Lawson last night was elected assistant recording secretary of Boston Lodge, No. 264, of Machinists. The new office was necessary because of the great growth in membership.

International Union Label League will address the union meeting tonight of the brass workers at No. 43 Kilby street.

Quincy Engineers have settled their strike and almost every returned to work this morning. An advance was granted and the agreement made to run for three years.

Newspaper Wagon Drivers and Helpers No. 256 last night voted against the substitution of the eight-hour standard. A testimonial supper and dance will be given in Roughan Society Hall, Charlestown, Tuesday, May 5. The proceeds are to be given to Patrick J. Hume and the family of the late Daniel W. Sullivan, formerly of the North End.

HELIE AND ANNA MET AT NAPLES

NAPLES, April 24.—Mme. Anna Gould has arrived at last at Naples, where Prince Helie de Sagan has been awaiting her for several days.

The Prince was on the dock when the Friederich Der Grosse drew in, hurried up the gangplank, met Mrs. Gould on deck, was friendly graciously received, kissed the American woman's hand and escorted her to a waiting automobile, in which they were both driven at top speed to the hotel where Mme. Gould's apartments have been engaged.

PLANS SHAKE-UP AT LONG ISLAND

A shake-up in the employes of the Long Island Hospital and Almshouse is expected when Dr. Charles E. Duncan, the new superintendent, elected yesterday, takes charge on May 2. The new superintendent is a graduate of Harvard, thirty-five years old, and a close friend of Governor Guild, serving with him on the staff of General Fitzhugh Lee in the Spanish War. He graduated from Harvard Medical School in 1898.

ROY ON TRIAL; SAYS HE SHOT CARKIN IN DUEL

PARIS, April 24.—Defending Paul Roy before Examining Magistrate Bouzard today, Maitre Antony Ambin, the young Frenchman's counsel, told in open court the same story of the shooting of George Carkin at Newington, N. H., last January that Roy related at a secret conference with the magistrate earlier in the week.

As was surmised, Roy's defence is practically along the lines revealed through the interviews following the making of the murder charge against him to Gracia Calla, Roy's wife and sister of Carkin.

The Frenchman's story is that Carkin had already opened fire on the former with his revolver, and that the American was killed in a duel.

Ambin strongly intimates that the wife's charge was brought through pique at her husband's return to France.

The general opinion in legal circles is that Magistrate Bouzard will discharge Roy on completion of the hearing.

CHANT REQUIEM OVER BODY OF CONSUL ROCHE

Funeral services over the remains of James Jeffrey Roche, late United States Consul to Berne, Switzerland, were held at 10 o'clock today in St. Cecelia's Church on Belvidere street, and the interment was in Hollywood Cemetery in Brookline. Mr. Roche was one of Boston's best beloved citizens. He was a poet of unusual merit and as an editor showed high journalistic ability. He died at his post in Berne, and the body reached this city two days ago.

At the church William Byrne, pastor, former vice general, sang a solemn high mass of requiem, assisted by the Rev. John J. O'Keefe as deacon and the Rev. Leo F. O'Neil as subdeacon.

The pallbearers were A. Shuman, T. B. Fitzpatrick, T. J. Gargan, Otis Kimball, John H. Fahey, Edward Moseley, Joseph Smith, Dr. P. J. Timulty, Sophus Potter, Charles Warren, G. F. Babbitt, Dr. F. A. Harris, Henry Rogers and Dr. John G. Blake. The ushers were John T. Finn, William V. Kerrigan, George Griffith, Dr. Edward Timmins and James B. Connolly, the author.

MRS. VANDERBILT MAY WED BARON O'CARROLL

SOCIETY FRIENDS SAY CEREMONY WILL TAKE PLACE IN JUNE, IN ITALY.

NEW YORK, April 24.—Coincident with the sailing of Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, Sr., to make her home abroad, it is learned to-day that Baron Otto Henning O'Carroll, the Austro-Hungarian consul here, had sailed on Wednesday. The Baron has been a frequent caller at Mrs. Vanderbilt's house and it was reported to-day that she would shortly marry him.

In discussing the report society friends of Mrs. Vanderbilt went so far as to assert that the marriage ceremony would be celebrated in Italy in June.

Baron O'Carroll has been a social protege of Mrs. Vanderbilt during the year and a half that he has been in America. She has introduced him everywhere, and it was the baron who introduced Mrs. Vanderbilt and Gladys to Count Szechenyi.

Both Bound for Italy.

Both the baron and Mrs. Vanderbilt have permanently closed their town houses here. The baron sailed for Italy, with a four months' leave of absence. His friends understand that he has a desire to return to Hungary to live.

Mrs. Vanderbilt sailed yesterday on the Kaiserin Augusta Victoria. Her plans call for a brief stay in London, followed by a trip to Italy. Baron O'Carroll will be in Naples during the early Summer.

Mr. Stern, secretary to Baron O'Carroll, when seen at the consulate, said he had heard the rumor that the baron and Mrs. Vanderbilt were engaged.

"I know that they are good friends, but that is really but about all I do know," said the secretary.

Regarded as Confirmed Bachelor.

"The baron has not taken me into his confidence regarding any such matter, and I have regarded him as a confirmed bachelor.

"I have heard a report from abroad that they are engaged, but I have no knowledge of such a fact. The baron sailed upon the steamship Aller two days ago. He obtained a four months' leave of absence, and gave up his residence at No. 200 West Ninety-ninth street. His servants were all dismissed, and his effects stored in the basement of the consulate. He had them insured for one year.

"The baron is one of the most popular noblemen in Hungary and now stands higher. He is a member of the regiment of Hussars to which Count Szechenyi is attached. The baron met the Vanderbilts abroad before he came to this country. He is one of Count Szechenyi's closest friends."

May Not Return Here.

Friends of Mrs. Vanderbilt, Sr., said yesterday that they did not believe she would ever again make her permanent home in this country. Before leaving, she sold practically all her personal property, closed up all her business affairs and dismissed her servants, a course that she has never before adopted when going abroad for a visit.

CLEVELAND IS MUCH BETTER, WIFE DECLARES

LAKEWOOD, N. J., April 24.—Mrs. Grover Cleveland declares that the ex-President is getting along nicely and that there is no occasion for the alarming rumors that have been in circulation in regard to his condition. She will probably issue an official statement to-day.

Mr. Cleveland has been suffering from rheumatic gout and stomach trouble, and is said to have been reduced to weight considerably in consequence. With Mrs. Cleveland and a trained nurse, he came to Lakewood March 16, and since then has occupied a suite of rooms at the Lakewood Hotel, where it was said he was regaining his health and strength. Since his arrival he has celebrated his seventy-first birthday.

The hotel closed Tuesday, but Mr. Cleveland did not leave with the other guests. This gave rise to a report that his condition was such that it was deemed imprudent for him to make the trip to Prince Bay, where he intended to see the ex-President.

James M. Beerr, the hotel manager, said to-day that the hotel would continue to house Mr. Cleveland's party until they find it convenient to leave.

LEITER TO WED SOON.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—The engagement of Joseph Leiter of Washington and Chicago and Miss Juliette Williams of this city, daughter of Colonel and Mrs. J. R. Williams, is announced.

WOLF STARTS BIG BARGAIN SALE IN SUITS

Bargain hunters who are seeking their new Spring and Summer outfits are visiting Wolf's, "My Clothier," corner of Hanover and Portland streets to-day.

Because of the continued cold spell this Spring, the manufacturing tailors have been hard hit, and big surplus stocks are the rule in nearly every case. Mr. Wolf, taking advantage of this condition, bought out the immense stock of Tobias, Greenthal & Mendelson of New York in one of his recent buying trips, and now has that stock on sale.

Fresh from the tailor's hands, this stock fulfills the latest edict of the fashion world in tailoring, cut and finish. They are models in design, every one of the suits, and the substantial saving of from $5 to $7 on every one is an added consideration.

The reputation of Tobias, Greenthal & Mendelson of New York is far-famed in the tailoring world. Mr. Wolf, because of ten months at Deer Island, will be enabled to buy their entire stock at an extremely low price.

10 MONTHS IN JAIL FOR KICKING WIFE

William Rogers, charged by his wife with beating and kicking her, was sentenced to ten months at Deer Island by Judge Fabyan in the South Boston Court to-day.

EXPLODED SENSATION IN RECOUNT

NEW YORK, April 24.—John T. Dooling, president of the board of elections, stood sponsor for an exploded sensation which is the latest feature of the recount trial which is continued to-day. Dooling is an appointee of McClellan. Prior to becoming an Election Commissioner he was one of the counsel engaged in fighting against the opening of the ballot boxes.

Since the opening of the present trial he has occupied a seat with McClellan's counsel and has frequently assisted in the examination of witnesses. He confessed yesterday he has consulted at times with Richards. McClellan's chief counsel, on matters appertaining to the case at issue.

His sensation consisted of a sworn testimony that on January 8 last, in company with Richards and Policeman Leigh, he called to the board of elections, he visited the Mott street storehouse, where some of the ballot boxes in dispute were temporarily stored, for the purpose of taking photographs to be used at the trial, and quite by accident discovered on the floor and in open boxes voted and rejected ballots of the Mayoralty election of November 7, 1905.

There was one other slipup during the proceedings of John W. Nosie, one of Dooling's employes, who consulted with Richards. The startling fact was brought out that one of the ballot boxes handled by him reached him in a broken condition. Richards left the matter in that shape. Then Dolson, for the people, took hold of the witness again and had clearly established the fact that that box was the one that was broken in finding it on a wagon in Forty-first street. Police Inspector Schmittberger saw it picked up, put a police guard around it right away, had the contents put into another box, sealed, and then, having the fragments of the old box about it, attached a slip containing the entire history of the occurrence, with the names of witnesses, and sent it away to storage.

Thus another sensation went up in smoke.

FINED $15 FOR CHELSEA THEFT

Charged with the larceny of eight pounds of copper from the ruins of the Chelsea fire and also with drunkenness, Thomas H. Reagan, a victim of the Chelsea conflagration and an employe of the Chelsea street department, was arraigned in the Malden District Court to-day before Judge Bruce and was fined $15 on the first charge and $5 for drunkenness. On failure to pay the fine imposed Reagan was committed to jail. The stolen copper was recovered from an Everett junkshop.

The EDISON PHONOGRAPH

ARE you about to entertain—to give a party or a dance, have a few friends in? The Edison Phonograph fits in with any scheme of entertainment—it will as readily furnish an entire programme for a vaudeville entertainment as for a concert of grand opera selections. It will provide all the music for a dance as easily as for a concert of band or orchestral music, or you may combine a little of each and give your friends the most delightful entertainment imaginable.

If you have not heard the new Edison model with the big horn, go to the nearest Edison store and hear it, or write to us for descriptive booklet.

BABY GIRL CRIED AND SCRATCHED

All the Time—Torturing Eczema Covered Her Body—Could Not Sleep—Doctor Said Sores Would Last for Years—Skin Now Clear.

CURED IN THREE MONTHS BY CUTICURA REMEDIES

"I take great pleasure in telling you what a great help it was for me to use Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment for my baby niece. She was suffering from that terrible torture, eczema. It was all over her body but the worst was on her face and hands. Her hands were so bad that she could not hold anything. She cried and scratched all the time and could not sleep night or day from the scratching. I had her under the doctor's care for a year and a half and he seemed to do her no good. I took her to the best doctor in the city and he said that she would have the sores until she was six years old. But if I had depended on the doctor my baby would have lost her mind and died from the want of aid.

"I used all the remedies that everybody told me about and I tortured the child almost to death. Then I saw in the paper how Cuticura was the thing for irritating skin. I bathed her with warm water and Cuticura Soap and used the Cuticura Ointment. She was cured in three months. Now her skin is as clear and smooth as it could be. I shall recommend the use of Cuticura wherever I see the skin in bad condition. Alice L. Dowell, 4769 Easton Ave., St. Louis, Mo., May 2 and 20, 1907."

WU HAS FOUND A MERRY WIDOW HAT AT LAST

Wu Ting Fang has seen the "Merry Widow" hat.

He declares that he must see more of them to form an opinion of the newest of styles.

Just now he has fears for the safety of their wearers should a good smart gust of east wind hit them.

"At last I have seen the 'Merry Widow' hat," announced the Chinese minister, to a reporter for the BOSTON AMERICAN.

"Yes, I saw it, right on Tremont street, too. A charming looking woman wore it; in fact, all the women of Boston look charming. But you want to know my opinion of the hat? Well, I have not formed a complete opinion yet. I must see more of them.

"What an extraordinary brim & has! It stood out like the coping of a building and threw an unsatisfactory shadow over the pretty face of the wearer. The thought struck me that if a frail bit of femininity were wearing such headgear and a good-sized gust of wind came by, such as greets you in Chicago, there would be apt to be an impromptu balloon ascension.

Meets Hub Merchants.

Wu Ting Fang was introduced to 150 prominent Boston business men at the banquet of the Boston Merchants' Association, given in his honor last night at the Algonquin Club. He was deeply gratified at the cordial greeting he received.

At the right of the toastmaster sat Wu Ting Fang and Charles S. Hamlin. On the left sat Richard Olney, Lieutenant-Governor Draper and Mayor Hibbard. The rest of the company comprised prominent merchants of the city.

Toastmaster Elwyn G. Preston in his remarks lauded the guest of the evening as the most celebrated personage ever sent to the country as a representative of China.

Minister Wu spoke interestingly of the development of the merchant class of China and how they had been aroused to conduct their business along modern lines.

In the course of his address, the Chinese minister said:

"China has drawn up a programme of reforms which she tries her best to carry out, but reforms require the expenditure of huge sums of money. On account of his money power, the merchant in China has forged his way to the foreground of society, and no undertaking of any importance, no measure of any gravity can be proposed without his co-operation and support.

Favors U. S. Trade.

"It is my fond hope that the United States will get a large share of this trade, but in order that this hope be realized, the present friendly relations between the two nations must be maintained, which I have no doubt will be, and all causes of friction be removed.

"China does not want unreasonable advantages and privileges. We want only fair and equal treatment, and I tell sure that your nation, so scrupulously conscientious, will not grudge us that."

Richard Olney and Lieutenant-Governor Draper were among the other speakers.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

SANFORD'S GINGER NOG Beat one egg in a tumbler with one tablespoonful sugar and one of Sanford's ginger. Fill the tumbler with boiling milk and grate nutmeg on top. A delicious digestive nutrient. Always healthful.

Is This Why Wu Ting Fang Sought a Merry Widow Hat?

They are useful in more ways than one, as the artist very ably demonstrates.

A Rousing Big Sale

The Result of an Immense Purchase From Tobias, Greenthal & Mendelsn of New York

This is the most profitable transaction in clothes Boston will see this season. One of those occasions where it pays you a double profit to spend your money. In all our experience we've never before been able to offer such stirring values in men's suits so early in the season—quality and price both considered. If you regard value as important as price you will count your money out and yourself in on this deal right now. Not "odds and ends," not "left-overs," not "last spring's styles," not suits that failed "to take," and consequently reduced in price. Not a bit of it! But the cream of the stock of one of the best makers in the land. Every garment is spick and span, fresh from the workshops, representing in cut, style and finish the very latest word of fashion.

The Kind of Man All Girls Should Avoid

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

A BEE once lighted on a flower
All on a Summer's day;
He sipped it once,
He sipped it twice,
And then he flew away.

There came a lizard to a wall
All on a Summer's day;
He ventured once,
He ventured twice,
And then he ran away.

There came a loose to a maid
All on a Summer's day;
He kissed her once,
He kissed her twice,
And then he rode away.

For the flower had no honey;
The wall was not sunny,
And the maid had no money.

Isn't it funny?
But it's true.

—Anonymous.

THE bee wanted sweetness, the best thing the flower had to give; the lizard wanted warmth, which in its estimation was the best thing the wall could give, and the maid wanted the least important thing that the girl could give—money.

A man of that calibre does not look for a wife who is young and sweet and charming. Of course, if she has those qualities, all the better; but money is the important thing. Everything else will be sacrificed for that.

The foreigner who comes to this country is looking for an heiress rather than for a wife. She may be old and ugly and stupid, but if she comes with her hands full of gold he is satisfied.

Shun Money Seekers

AND even in our own fair country the fortune hunter exists. Fortunately he is rare, but there are men who think most of all of the money side of the matter when seeking a wife.

In a recent story the man was all smiles during his courting days, when he thought the girl's father was well off and that he would provide well for him.

But when he died and left her no fortune the husband's true nature came to the fore. Nothing could be more unlike him than his character.

When a man begins to pay serious attention to a girl she must use her brains as well as her heart.

She must study him carefully before she decides to spend the rest of her life by his side.

Cupid or Cupidity?

IF she is a girl of intuition and intelligence she can tell whether he loves her for herself or for her money she may bring him.

The moment he tries to borrow money from her she may be quite sure that his love is not sincere, and that he is a worthless man.

As for fretting over the man who leaves her when he finds she has no money, that is sheer waste of time and feeling.

To get rid of such a man is a great good fortune, and some day she will realize it.

If a man really loves a girl he is quite ready and willing to work for her support. Sometimes he loses heart and gives them up, but more often than not, his wife will have had a sorry life.

Look out for the money seeker, and if he comes a wooing send him about his business. He is not the man to make an girl happy.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

ABSOLUTELY WRONG

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Would you kindly tell me what you think of a married man, who says he loves a certain young lady dearly, but owing to his character cannot secure a divorce, anything toward parting with his wife. And do you think he would, my lady that if she would wait, not mentioning any definite time in his favor, say all would turn out in his favor, saying, "Time will decide." The young lady told me that he told her and time that she did not care to hear of his love for her, but when God plans it he will make things as pleasant as possible for his wife, even though she made his life an unhappy one. But as the time advances, and the young lady still keeps on telling him that he is not getting right toward his wife, and he is beginning to love him. How would you advise this young lady to talk to him next, so that he should cease telling her of his love and keep his wife, as I think her self-sacrifice should crown her in the end.

I have told her that she already cried every for her false sake, but she thought it a means—his reasoned with him, his lady friendship, of her dreams, and of her words useless, but all of no avail.

THE only way to stop the man's attentions and save herself from much unhappiness is to stop seeing him at all. Telling him to stop talking will not do any good. She must have nothing to do with him. His attentions can bring her nothing but harm. No married man has the right to pay attentions to a young girl. I sincerely hope that she will be wise in this and put an instant stop to the friendship.

MAYONNAISE DRESSING

ONE teaspoon mustard, one teaspoon salt, pinch of cayenne, mix smooth with a little warm water, add to this two eggs and beat well. Then add four tablespoons melted butter. Beat well. To this add three tablespoons of vinegar, mix well, put in top of double boiler and stir constantly until it thickens. Let stand and cool until ready to use.

WALNUT COOKIES

MIX together one-half cup granulated sugar, two tablespoons butter, one egg, meat of ten English walnuts cut up small, two tablespoons milk, one teaspoon vanilla, one cup of bread flour, sufficient with two even teaspoons baking powder. Allow a teaspoon for each cookie, drop on buttered pan about two inches apart as they spread; wet teaspoon in cold water to prevent sticking. Bake in quick oven six minutes. They need watching, as they burn readily, or moving pan too much causes them to fall. This makes thirty cookies.

MRS. E. J. RICHARDSON,
No. 76 Moore street, Lowell.

WALNUT WAFERS

ONE-HALF pound brown sugar, one-half pound broken walnut meats, two level tablespoons flour, one-quarter teaspoon of baking powder, one-third teaspoon salt, two eggs. Drop small spoonfuls on buttered pans. Bake in a quick oven.

MRS. ALEX ADAMS.
Berlin, N. H.

CHERRY WINE

PRESS all the juice you can from the cherries, then take an equal amount of boiling water and pour over the cherry juice. Let stand two hours. Squeeze out as much juice as there is of these and mix. Then add four pounds of brown sugar to each quart of juice. Let stand and work, when worked, three or four weeks, simply putting in pieces of paper over the bung hole. Then put in bottles, always lay them on the side.

MRS. CHARLES A. LYON.

Three cups white sugar, one and one-half cups water, one-quarter cup of butter, small piece of soda, one teaspoon of vanilla.

DELICIOUS DESSERT

PRUNES and maple sugar combine to make one of the most delicious desserts that ever have been built. Put a sort of sauce pan. Soak over night two cups of prunes in water enough to cover in the morning simmer until perfectly tender, then remove stones and stir in one cup of chopped maple sugar, cut into small pieces. The prunes should be nearly dry. Cover with a good biscuit dough, rolled thin, with a little cup of shaved maple sugar rolled over it. Bake in a quick oven and serve with cream.

The Bettys at the Baseball Game—By Nell Brinkley

Say, Can You Beat It!

I WENT to a baseball game, oh, Betty
Angelfaces, and it's bullet!

Tho only baseball I ever knew was the game the little kids in grammar school used to play in the great patch of yellow sand behind the school yard. And we little Bettys perched on the fence with our little freckled noses screwed up and our dear eyes shut.

And baseball has always meant to me a howling, dusty, "Aw, he did not!" "Aw-w-he did, too!" scrap from the beginning to the end, with rows of little gingahamed, pig-tailed girls getting in on it from the white fence, until they played "three o outs" and then the pottheated rooter might climb down and play, too.

So you see I didn't know what a real baseball game was and I forgotten every blessed thing of what I did know about baseball men.

About the points of the game I mean: for I've found out that the "play" of the game is just about the same that I had in my head of it when I was a little kiddie.

Well, What Do You Think of That!

A howling scrap from beginning to end, with petticoated rooters on the fence getting in on it!

The whole think looked like a "pic" a painter, who held it on neat and clean, had never got any on his cuffs or wiped his thumb on his vest between duns, might paint.

The blindling blue and yellow and red clothesed blazed in the sun, against the field. The "bleachers" throbbed and pulsed with the ceaseless motion of kid arms and legs and hands and bodies that had played hookey and saved up pennies to get there.

The sun struck the crinkling, writhing flags above the grandstand, cut out the shadow of it, blue and sharp-edged on the turf, and lay white and bright on the rest of the open field.

The white of the markings and the bags at the bases were like flakes in the sun, and hurt my eyes.

The grandstand and boxes were a-riot with the slashes and shouts of the cerise, and sky blue, and gold, and scarlet of the Bettins' mercury wings on their hats. It was sun, and glare, and color, and sweet air, and a strange atmosphere of danger and fun.

And over all, like the sound of a canyon

The Sun in Her Eyes, and Her Mouth Hitched Up

creek, that drowns and threads through and under all other sounds, was the beating of the hum of voices, and the lilt of laughter, and shrieks, and bowls, and jeers, and thumping feet!

Oh, La-la-la-la-la-la!

The row of Bettinas behind me was a wonder. I watched men's faces until I found them, and after that I forgot the men. They were calling Peter's chocolate, and laughing like mad hoarse, and saying names at the players when they missed doing a stunt of wonder.

One would crumple up and lie limp with her eyes addressed to the roof, and gasp: "Say, can you beat it?"

The little brown one by her would bite off chocolate and stare with round golden eyes and murmur: "Well, what do you think of that?"

A wholesome one in hunter's green shut her eyes tight and clinched her tan fists and trilled: "Oh, la-la-la—lalala!" and laughed till her teeth were a white band across her face.

Another two lost their hearts to a fellow who never did a clever thing. But he was an "angel," and it was his shoulders and his walk that wooed their hearts away.

The saddle Bettina was a beauty, swathed in an auto veil of tender gray like a dove's breast. She was alone in her car, and she squinted her golden lashes and hitched up one corner of her scarlet mouth in the glare.

Isn't He an Angel!

Her hair was red-brown, and she wailed when a man went out on his run from third base to home, and choked and gurgled when another plowed up the purple-brown earth and patted the plate before the ball came back.

And all of a sudden I forgot the Bettys and the things they were looking and doing, and their pretty faces, and everything else in the world; for the ball sailed high and clear from the bat and the sun and shimmered over first and on to second, while the dark men chased it wildly, and beautiful music to me, a small girl who lives in one's nostrils.

And here was I, the maker of Bettles and Billies, who went for nothing but the faces of them, and color and time and sphere, and didn't give a flip of my little finger for the game, bumping up and down on my two feet, beating my two hands together and loosing my top and singing out just sounds, in the top of my voice.

And when the man rose from a tearing slide on the dirt, with the front of his shirt torn and his pants powdered in white dust, I never looked at the Bettys and the kids and the color any more. Fun! Oh, boy!

NELL BRINKLEY.

American Short Story

The Image in the Mirror——By Marcel Provost

WHEN Ludovic Amburs, as a wounded animal that retires into its lair, fled from the world to the loneliness of his Chateau Hourguet, his bitter sorrow was changed into a deep melancholy.

In the fog of the Winter evening he saw once more the old chateau where he had spent his boyhood and youth, into which he had led his young wife only two years before, and where he only a few short weeks ago had passed so many happy hours together with her. And now he returned alone. The woman whom he had loved above all in the world lay buried in Paris.

Everything here reminded him of her. In the vestibule still hung the simple straw hat she had worn in the gardens, and by its side her parasol and gloves, and in the wardrobes were her dresses, still fragrant with her favorite perfume. On a table lay the book in which she had been reading the last evening, with an envelope addressed to her to mark the place where she had stopped reading. A folded blanket arranged by her hands was still untouched in a vase in her boudoir, deserving by its scentlegious hands, and no one had dared even to open a window lest the flowers should crumble into dust.

Ludovic was surprised at the change in his feeling; surprised that all these little things did not cause him pain or added to the sorrow of his heart. He loved his house in Paris. Here they did not remind him of death. It rather seemed as if time had gone by, and then he loved her, but when dead, like a dream, but seemed as if she were still living, she was only absent and the things which she had touched acquired during her absence, as if she would still return.

Longings

He would have given his life to have been able to see his wife once more, even if it were only in a dream, but to see her then or in a moment of insanity. Every night before going to bed he thought of her features, of her dress, of her sleep, in the hope to dream of her during his sleep—but in vain. He dreamed that he stood at her grave, that he spoke of her to his friends, that he replied to letters of condolence, but he never saw her.

Should it not be possible to science, as he thought, which can make us sleep by giving us a simple powder, to make her image appear before one's eyes in a dream?

He put this question to the only neighbor who had received during these days of sorrow, an old physician who had very little and put on instant step to the friendship.

For Sejour had been a widower for years and lived alone with his daughter Marina, a tall, imposing girl, who had never married to help, her unusual beauty and though she was now twenty-seven.

"My dear friend," the doctor replied, "science has no means to make things dreams do not hope for it. I have myself once felt exactly what you feel now when I lost my beloved wife, but I have never seen her in my dreams, and if you, as I do, believe, are a normal and healthy man, you will not dream of her either, and it, believe me, far better so. Let the dead bury their dead; do not wish for anything which is against the laws of nature. You are not yet thirty; time will heal the wounds of your heart; you will marry and be happy with another."

"Never," Ludovic replied. His eyes met those of Marina Sejour. The girl's beauty, life and intelligence he thought. I do not think that I displease her, and that she would reciprocate me, but the very idea of such a sacrilegious hands, and no one had dared even to open a window lest the flowers should crumble into dust.

Ludovic was surprised at the change in his feeling; surprised that all these little things did not cause him pain or added to the sorrow of his heart. He loved his house in Paris. Here they did not remind him of death. It rather seemed as if time had gone by, and then he loved her, but when dead, like a dream, but seemed as if she were still living, she was only absent and the things which she had touched acquired during her absence, as if she would still return.

Longings

He would have given his life to have been able to see his wife once more, even if it were only in a dream, but to see her then or in a moment of insanity. Every night before going to bed he thought of her features, of her dress, of her sleep, in the hope to dream of her during his sleep—but in vain. He dreamed that he stood at her grave, that he spoke of her to his friends, that he replied to letters of condolence, but he never saw her.

Should it not be possible to science, as he thought, which can make us sleep by giving us a simple powder, to make her image appear before one's eyes in a dream?

Expert Hints on Beauty

BY THE PROFESSOR

VASELINE AND KEROSENE

DEAR PROFESSOR:

Kindly advise me relative to your remedy of kerosene and vaseline for the hair and scalp, as to quantity of each, and how often applied.

M. W. O.

THE vaseline should be applied slightly a few drops only, on the scalp, which should be well massaged. Apply the kerosene once a month the night before you wish a shampoo. Massage the scalp well with it and tip up the hair on top of the head, covering it with a cloth and being careful to keep it away from the light. Shampoo with eggs and dry in the sun if possible. If hair gets oily and dirty between times of shampooing give it a dry shampoo or use alcohol on the scalp.

CASE FOR PHYSICIAN

DEAR PROFESSOR:

I am twenty-one, and my health is giving away from no apparent cause. My leg is swollen, and it pains me to stand on it, so I have to recline on a couch or lie in bed, and it is getting worse. It started first at my ankle, the veins became puffed, and I was advised to secure a rubber stocking, which I did. That does not seem to remedy it, the swelling still goes on, and I shall be more than thankful to you, if you prescribe some remedy.

E. F.

YOUR case is undoubtedly one for a physician. The symptoms indicate that there is a systemic trouble about which the beauty doctor would not risk advice.

Why Women Can't Vote

Optimistic Boarder and the Old Crank Have It Out

By KENNETT HARRIS

"NO reason in the world why just saturated with syrup. The Old Crank they shouldn't be allowed to vote," said the Optimistic Boarder. "We'd be better off in every respect if they did. We'd have decency in politics, and high ideals, and economy in the administration of affairs. A woman man's inferior? Do you mean to tell me that?"

"Are you addressing me?" asked the Old Crank.

"I was," said the Optimistic Boarder. "I want to know whether you consider that a woman has a lower order of intelligence than a man; whether you consider that she is incapable, by reason of her limited intellect, of understanding the questions affecting the welfare of the nation or the community? You sneered at the mention of woman suffrage. I would like to know why."

"Speak up," said the Stock Broker's Clerk. "The ladies are waiting to hear what you've got to say for yourself. You don't need to look at the door, either. We'll nail you before you get half way there."

The Old Crank smiled grimly. "I suppose you think that you have all the necessary qualifications?" he asked.

"I certainly do," replied the Optimistic Boarder.

"I've got a package of gum that I haven't opened upstairs," said the Young Lady (Employed). "You shall have a stick for that, if I had a vote I'd tell you what I'd vote for. I'd make every old bachelor over forty pay a tax to keep the Home for Destitute Children."

"Cheer up," advised the Stock Broker's Clerk. "Continue to dance, and then you can always fall back on me."

"I'll tell you why I don't think of you if I did," said the Young Lady (Employed). "Guess how much I weigh. You needn't though, I'd never tell you. It's fierce the way I'm getting!"

More Bouquets!

"It speaks well for the table of our excellent hostess," observed the Divinity Student. "Not that you are at all unbecoming stout," he added, affably.

"I'm getting more bouquets!" said the Young Lady (Employed). "I believe you are just trying to flatter me, Mr. Divinity."

"I think that flattery is a form of insincerity, and I trust that I am not insincere," said the Divinity Student.

"I think myself that it is about time women had their rights," said the Landlady. "I know my taxes have been high enough this year to entitle me to have something to say."

"That is a woman's inalienable right," said the Old Crank.

Stock's Clerk had a sort of witticism that men advance in place of argument, and the Optimistic Boarder, Landlady and the Young Lady (Employed). "The world of not getting protection," said the Pretty Young Married Woman, "and the Divinity Student. "I'm going to be single myself."

"It's the province of man to protect the weaker sex," declared the Divinity Student.

"A man who will not protect his wife is less than a man. Woman is the weaker sex, her place is the home——"

"Or the boarding house," murmured the Young Lady (Employed).

Man's Tasks!

"While man, being the stronger, takes up the rougher and sterner tasks of life for which she is physically disqualified——"

"Such as measuring off two yards and a quarter of gros-grain on the bias," suggested the Stock Broker's Clerk, "or braving the terrors of the curb."

The World's Debt to Mothers of Great Men

No. 55—The Mother of Emerson

By REV. THOS. B. GREGORY

TWO grand old Greeks have, for twenty-five centuries, been generally accepted as the representatives of the two main types of our human thinking—Plato, the idealist, and Aristotle, the Logician—the one drawing his conclusions from the inward Idea, the other basing all upon the testimony of Facts.

Was it Coleridge who declared that every man who does any thinking at all about life and the world is obliged to be "either a Platonist or an Aristotelian"?

Emerson was a Platonist of the Platonists—a man who would have rejected the soul of the broad-browed King of the Attic Academy, had he lived back in his time.

For Facts, as the term is generally understood, Emerson cared nothing. With the "Sage of Concord" the Idea, the inward thought or sentiment, was all. He believed that man was a Soul with a body, rather than a Body with a soul. He put the Soul first, and by His deliverances judged all things.

The human intelligence, with its reason and imagination, its love and hope, its sense of universal justice and its faith in immortal life, was, in Emerson's opinion, the final tribunal for the settlement of all questions of Science and Philosophy.

Inspires Us

SINCE Plato himself passed out from the ways of men, no one has spoken so gloriously of human nature and human life as has Ralph Waldo Emerson.

He does not argue or dispute; but from the serene heights of the Spirit he sends down the word which inspires us and makes us glad creatures.

To be supremely pitied is the man or woman who does not know Emerson! Such man or woman has missed the greatest incentive to hope and good cheer that is to be found in all the pages of literature. Read one page a week of the wise Emerson's works before you do anything else. Read only a single thought from the inspirations of them a part of your very intellectual life, and you will be infinitely enriched in all the elements of mental and moral uprightness.

This wonderful man was pre-eminently his mother's child.

Of Ruth Haskins, Emerson's mother, we read that "there was in her a native serenity that nothing could disturb. Always the wind stirs up the surface of the ocean, but always below the mighty deep is calm and unruffled.

She was even so with this remarkable woman. She was human, and the facts of the world were obliged to make more or less of an impression on her; but deep down in her soul, deep down in her spiritual self, she was always unruffled.

One who knew her intimately wrote of her: "We were first attracted to know her to be without comparison. I continued to see her for many years, and thought her looks, words, actions, the sweetest, wisest, finest, chastest in the world. She sustained every trial of temper with a dignity and firmness and good sense that I shall ever respect."

Superior Mind

SAYS Dr. Frothingham: "Her character and mind were of a superior order, and they set their stamp upon manners of people and society. She was a woman of superior dignity. Her sensitive and kindly speech was always as good as the best instruction; and her mind was of a quality to which liquid eyes, from which old age could not take away the expression, will be the remembrance of all on whom they ever rested."

Here was a woman who was at peace with God and with the world. Such a dreams, no troublesome visions of life or destiny, could ever disturb her peace. She was thoroughly alive and thoroughly self-reliant.

She did not need to worry herself with arguing over the problems of life. Her pure spirit told her that all was well, and everything in it, even the dark things, and the Great Nature as the slip rests upon the bosom of the ocean.

When the waves meets the storm-cloud he does not try to fight it, but simply rises above it, and take glorious joy from the bright heavens above.

That was the spirit of this mother did. In the strength of her soul she rose above all trouble and sorrow, and lived in a world and was happy.

Truly is a woman, a mother, is it strange that Emerson grew up to be the seer that he was, the modern Plato, the comforter of those who are troubled by the "tyranny of facts"?

SILK GLOVES

KID gloves, while very beautiful, cannot possibly be worn every day all Summer, and for all days that they are worn they are chamois and silk. The former become soiled and shabby after about one week, but are now more generally worn. This year they are made in a variety of styles, and are embroidered in self tones. They are in good taste.

Many Earnest Voices Heard in Question

WHERE IS GRACE BROWN'S SOUL?

Was Grace Brown's soul lost?
Was Chester Gillette's soul saved?

Responding to the invitation of the BOSTON AMERICAN to discuss these questions, hundreds of AMERICAN readers have hastened to the defence of the gentle girl, cruelly slain by her sweetheart.

Rev. George A. Mellway of Auburn, who received Gillette's confession shortly before he died in the electric chair at Sing Sing, has declared that the murderer's soul is in Heaven and the girl's among the lost. Among the hundreds of letters received on this subject a vast majority declare that Grace Brown's soul is saved; that she is now in Heaven and that all the pain and suffering she endured through Gillette have been changed to happiness.

A few AMERICAN readers who have accepted the invitation to discuss Rev. Mr. Mellway's blasphemous declare his theology is correct, as, that Gillette, having repented, must have received forgiveness.

The AMERICAN to-day prints a few of the letters discussing the questions.

PLACES A PREMIUM ON CRIME PLUS 12TH HOUR REPENTANCE

By Rabbi Charles Fleischer

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

All the curious talk about those wandering souls of Gillette and his murdered sweetheart, Grace Brown, reminds one of the cynic's prayer: "O, God (if there is a God), have mercy on my soul (if I have a soul)."

We have to take our souls for granted, somewhat in the sense in which Voltaire suggested that, if there were no God, it were well to invent one.

Personally, I never feel so irreligious as when I hear or read some of the twaddle spoken in the name of religion. The case in point in the curious utterance attributed to a supposed teacher of religion that the soul of Grace Brown (presumably because she died without the privilege of sanctified preparation for her end) is in Hell (wherever that may be), while the soul of her confessed murderer (because he had, in the end, before meeting death as a felon, "got religion"), is rejoicing in Heaven (wherever that may be).

Now I am not an expert in celestial geography, though I like Wordsworth's poetic suggestion that "trailing clouds of glory do we come." But I do not know of any one else who has ever come back from "that undiscovered country from whose bourne no traveler returns."

Indeed, I do not believe in a geographical heaven or hell. Therefore, I can venture no opinion as to the present address of either Grace Brown or Chester Gillette.

But I can venture an opinion as to the ethics of a teacher of religion who has assigned them the respective locations referred to. I should say that it places a premium on crime plus twelfth hour piety as preferable to injured and outraged innocence which chances to die unsaviren.

GRACE BROWN AT WORST SUPERIOR TO THE BEST MAN.

By Lynn Osborne, Lynn.

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Assuming that these religious teachers, theologians and ecclesiastics, really believe that there is a Heaven and Hell, that one place or condition embraces everlasting happiness, and the other everlasting suffering and damnation, is it not monstrous that any one of them dare to judge Grace Brown, who, even in her darkest moments, was probably purer and better than the best man that has ever lived, be he preacher or layman.

Smug, self-satisfied society has condemned such as Grace Brown for centuries, and many a good, trusting girl has gone down under the jeers of the so-called "respectable" who either have never been tempted, or who have been fortunate enough to possess a dark closet for their skeletons. It is bad enough for women to pervie the weakness of a fallen sister, but any man who condemns a woman who has made a mistake through love is a hypocrite and a cad.

I, like other men, have gathered up a good share of the mire of life, and perhaps a great deal of it still clings to me, but if I were guilty of the crime of Chester Gillette I should feel that in spits of any repentance or confession, I was still an undesirable factor in the machinery of society, and if there was a hell I had a good chance of going there.

IMMORTALITY OF THE SOUL MUST BE FIRST MADE PLAIN

By John W. Coggeshall, Providence.

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

I have been reading some of the letters published in your paper relative to the whereabouts of the souls of Miss Grace Brown and Chester Gillette. It seems to me ridiculous to discuss such a matter, when no one yet has been able to prove the immortality of the individual existence which we call soul. I would refer your readers who have taken part in this discussion (especially the ministers, who have been most prominent and exposed such positive opinions) to Ernest Haeckel's "Riddle of the Universe," in this book he says: "The belief in the immortality of the human soul is a dogma which is in hopeless contradiction with the most solid empirical truths of modern science." I would also refer to Adalbert Svoboda's "The Illusion of the Soul and Forms of Faith."

If some of these communications in your paper are examples of the best theological thought of the present day, it would seem far better if the clergy would devote some of their superfluous time to useful work that would be of some real benefit to the living world.

"LEAVE THE WORLD BETTER THAN WHEN WE CAME INTO IT"

By John A. Bartlett, No. 163 Liberty street, Lynn.

Editor Boston American:

Heaven or Hell is only another name for reward or punishment. I believe that neither Gillette or Grace Brown is in Heaven; on the contrary, they are both in Hell, or Hades, the grave, which is the same thing, and as for their future existence, that depends on whether they will ever be born again, as Christ told Nicodemus he must be (John 3-7) or come up again in what is called the Resurrection, both of which theories are as much a matter of speculation and dispute as heaven or hell.

I think it would pay us all better to live our life at a time, and try and live the life we now have in just the manner that will make whatever the term heaven is understood to imply; and when we are called upon to close the book we will have the satisfaction of feeling that we have left the world better for our having stopped a little while in it.

GIRL MUST BE APPEALED TO GOD IN LAST MOMENTS

By Lizzie S. Graham, No. 61 Park Street, Fall River.

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Suffering in silence, Grace Brown's eccending letters to Chester Gillette were not connected in any way with her future existence. The question is in her last moments did she look to the higher Power? Her sensitive nature would cause her to do so. I believe Grace Brown is in Heaven.

RECEPTION GIVEN PLYMOUTH PASTOR

PLYMOUTH, April 24.—The Rev. Melvin O. Bradlow, who was recently appointed pastor of the First Church (Unitarian), was tendered a reception last evening by his parishioners in Kendall Hall. The committee in charge of the arrangements was William Hedge, Francis J. Heaven, superintendent of school of Plymouth; James Thurber, president of the Old Colony National Bank; Hon. W. S. Kyle and H. S. Royal. A ladies' quartet furnished the music for the evening.

A Laxative that is as Harmless as Food

If you ate plenty of fruit, coarse food and green vegetables, the bowels would never need help.

But when you eat fine food, and rich food, you must supply the laxative in some other way.

Do it in Nature's way.

Don't employ salts or pill cathartics, for they violate Nature. They irritate and injure the stomach and bowels.

Nearly all dyspepsia—all constipation is caused by the use of harsh physic.

Cascarets—a vegetable laxative—have precisely the same effect as a laxative food.

You know they don't harm you because they don't gripe.

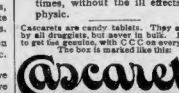
They do for the bowels just what right living would do. And they do it as gently and naturally.

You can take them any hour of the day.

And that is the proper method. Carry them with you. Take one just as soon as you need it.

That is the way to keep well at all times, without the ill effects of a physic.

Cascarets are candy tablets. They are sold by all druggists, but never in bulk. Be sure to get the genuine, with C C C on every tablet. The box is marked like this:



The vest-pocket box is 10 cents. The month-treatment box 50 cents. 12,000,000 boxes sold annually.

Three Strong Reasons Explanatory of Our Leadership in Young Folks' Wear.

1.—Our study of juvenile requirements in the production of modish lines, real dress comfort and durability of fabric and resultant ability to accurately forecast the wanted styles.
2.—Extensive scope of our superior merchandise system, re-inforced by the purchasing power of five great stores.
3.—Our firm stand for intelligently built garments and keen discrimination against the lower grades indifferently ironed and pressed into shape for quick selling purposes.

These are not accumulations of odds and ends of the season, or goods returned because of defects, but up-to-date, new wanted goods, made up expressly for us at after-Easter prices.

DOVES' PITCHING STAFF CRIPPLED

BY DIKE CLARK.

"I've only got two pitchers," declared Joe Kelley this morning. "That is, three pitchers that are in shape to work regularly. Three others are laid up with injuries, while the seventh, Pat Flaherty, ought not to be used, but I'm afraid he will have to pitch himself into condition in the regular games.

"Young is strong and is going well. Dorner and Livingston are also O. K., but these three are no one out. I had to leave Pfeffer in New York, and I don't know when he will be able to report. Ferguson is on the hospital list and I can't tell a thing about him, either. Boultes is in bad shape and there's no telling when he will be able to report.

"Everybody who was out for the opening game could see that Pat Flaherty is far from being at his best. His arm is sore, but considering how badly I am off for pitchers just now I may have to let him work in the box just the same.

"The injury to Beaumont's back did not amount to much, and he will be in the game regularly from now on.

"Of course, he is not as good shape as four other regular players, as he didn't go South with us, but hot weather like we are having now will soon put him in the proper condition.

"Warm weather is what our team has needed more than anything else. We have so many old-timers on the team that it is simply impossible for them to do anything in cold weather. The youngsters can get along all right, no matter how cold it is, but with we old fellows it is different.

"I am confident that our batting and fielding will improve a lot if the warm spell holds on. We get out every morning for practice and we are also out long before the game begins for batting practice.

"I am feeling fine myself, but my arm is sore and I can't take many chances with my legs. That's the reason I am not in the game regularly. But this warm weather is doing me a world of good."

There are two English translations to the name of Hoch, and both fit, in appropriately when applied to the Phillies' new pitcher. Thus Hoch means "hail," as, for instance, when the Germans cheer their Emperor they say "Hoch der Kaiser," meaning "Hail to the King." If Manager Murray's new pitching recruit continues to perform as he has performed in the two games he has thus pitched, both of which he won, he will be greeted by the specimens of the Phillies' grounds in the future with the welcome "Hoch der Hoch!" or "Hail to Hoch!"

The other English translation of Hoch is high. There is therefore a synonym in the application of the English translation to the original German—of Hoch—viz., high-high class. That Hoch is high class as a pitcher seems no longer to admit of an argument, unless he should explode later on as touted early Spring phenoms frequently do.

Incidentally the umpires, players and spectators appear to be having an awful time of it in pronouncing Hoch's name correctly. Think of Koch, a common name, and you have it. Give the long o to it the same as if spelled Hoech, and then the German ch accent at the end, which you pull up from way down your throat like Loch in Lochinvar.

Umpire Klem, a German, should know how to spit out the name correctly, but in making his announcements he will persist in saying "Hock" just as if Billy Murray was running a pawn shop and had secured this pitcher by giving the Wilmington club a collateral ticket for him. I suppose, however, that Klem takes the name as it is handed to him by the Hibernians on the Phillies' bench, who would choke to death if they tried get the "ch" on the "ch" at the fag end of Hoch's game. But we'll let it go at that rather than be the innocent cause of spreading an epidemic of tonsilitis among the Murrays, the Doolins, the Dooins, the Magees, the McQuillens, the Corcorans and the other members of French descent in the Philadelphia team.

From the floor of the New York Stock Exchange to the baseball diamond is the leap that "Handsome Fred" Burchell, the left-handed pitcher of this year's Boston American team, made when he forsook the bulls and bears to try his fortune among the bugs and fans of baseballdom.

Seven years ago Burchell would have laughed in derision had anyone told him that he was shortly to blossom out as a professional baseball player. A year before he had quit Franklin and Marshall College just in time to avert an expected entrance into the divinity school. Burchell's parents were of good old Quaker stock and he was booked for the cloth from the time he became old enough to go to Sunday school.

He persuaded his father, however, to allow him to follow a business career and he was soon put to work figuring up margins and commissions, watching the tape and studying methods by which the bulls now and then got even with the bears. On Saturday afternoons he pitched for an amateur baseball team. One day the manager of the Evansville (Ind.) team in the Three I League made a proposition to him. The salary offered was four times Burchell was getting in the broker's office. Burchell pays better than baseball," soliloquized Burchell, and on that day his baseball career began.

MIKE TWIN WINS FAKE BOUT

LOS ANGELES, Cal., April 24.—Once again a Los Angeles fight audience has been bunkoed by one of the fighting Sullivan twins. This time it was Mike Sullivan who sent a small, but select audience out of the New Vernon arena of the Jeffries A. C., last night, in a disgusted frame of mind.

He whipped Jimmy Gardner of Lowell, Mass., most decisively and was awarded the decision by Referee Jim Jeffries at the end of the twenty-fifth round. What aggravated the fight fans was the fact that Sullivan allowed the fight to go the limit after he had shown that he was Gardner's master as easily as the fifth round.

On numerous occasions when Gardner was staggering around the ring, groggy and apparently helpless, Mike would stand off and play safe. It was one of the most unsatisfactory fights ever put up by one of the Sullivan twins in Los Angeles.

In just two rounds of the twenty-five did Gardner make an even fight of it, and that was during the eighteenth and nineteenth rounds, when the battered and bruised Jimmy came to life with a spurt of speed and tore into Sullivan with sufficient force to warrant the audience up to the occasion for the first time during the night.

The Boston man was out to win a decision at the end of the twenty-fifth and looked footed of fighting. Sullivan kept up a continual jabbing process to Jimmy's face with his left hand during the fight. Not once did Jabs such a fighter is expected to use, but a snappy, tantalizing sort of a slap that, while it be the effect of closing Gardner's left eye and bringing the claret from his nose, there never was sufficient force behind them to give the bout an appearance of a real fight.

AMERICAN LEAGUE PARK, Washington, April 24.—By dumping the Red Sox yesterday the Senators played to a better crowd of fans to-day, when the Down-Easters got on to the diamond seeking revenge.

The home team showed that it had the stuff to win games out by a strong finish and the style netted a great hit with the patrons, who saw visions of more reverses for the visiting crew.

It takes considerable time for a team to recover from being defeated after getting a straight hold on the game, and the Red Sox were somewhat cast down in feeling when they went into the final, and it took all of Manager McGuire's urging to get them going right.

The fact that Cy Young or Cy Morgan was slated for the box work gave the Hub bunch a lot of courage. Young was the one best bet when it came to slaughtering Charlton's band, but trimmed them tie enough at the Hub station and was ready to repeat.

Against big Cy it was planned to put Long Tom Hughes, as the tall pitcher always had the sign on the Red Sox, while Falkenberg was held in reserve.

PIERCE SELLS LAUNDRY BOY

WORCESTER, April 24.—Laundry Boy, 2:10¼, one of the fastest trotters in this city, and well known to horsemen throughout New England, having been sold professionally on the leading tracks previously to becoming the property of E. N. Pierce, who used him in speedway, track matinees and interest work, has been sold to a party in Northern Vermont, whose identity is kept a secret.

It is thought that Laundry Boy is headed for the race meetings in the Northern Vermont and New Hampshire circuit that offer unusually good-sized purses for half-mile track racing.

CHOPPING WOOD HELPS PLAYER

Fred Clarke, generalissimo of the Pirate gang, has a hobby. It consists of chopping wood during the Winter. Clarke declares it has kept him in the game all these years, and are ought to know.

During a rainy day fanning session Fred handed out a lot of advice to young Buccaneers who hope some day to become regular Pirates. "Pay all Winter in the open, but make your play count. Buy a farm that is well timbered and put in the Winter days clearing it. That's what I do, and my brother Josh does the same thing, and you will not find a huskier specimen than he is anywhere."

KILLEEN MAKES GOOD.

NEW YORK, April 24.—Jack Killeen, the Irish champion, made his first appearance in the ring in this country at the Olympic A. C., in Harlem, where he outpointed Kid Williams of Philadelphia in the main bout of six rounds.

FAUSTALAER IS TIPPED TO WIN BIG STAKE RACES

BY ED COGSWELL.

With the publishing of the entries to the classic $10,000 M. and M. stake at Detroit, the opener of the Grand Circuit, comes the story that the trotter expected to sweep the big stakes of the season is Faustalaer, by Cuylercrust, 2:31, owned by J. H. Brown of Detroit. When the various stakes have all closed this stallion will have been entered in $145,000 worth of engagements.

Last year Faustalaer worked a mile over the Detroit track in 2:07¾, as early as July and was entered in the M. and M. and other stakes down the big line. He trained off, however, and rather than take the chances of giving him a record for little money late in the season he was saved over for this year.

He make the 2:07¾ mile more sensational it is claimed that the son of Cuylercrust was only in training for ninety days. This fact has caused the friends of the stallion to believe that when his racing days are over the world's stallion trotting record will be his. Many of the most experienced horsemen in the country have made offers of fabulous sums in an effort to buy the horse, but Mr. Brown has decided to keep him for himself.

If Faustalaer captures the M. and M. it is certain, however, that he will knock that event in for a loop, for among the entries a number of trotters that have been very fast in races or private trials. From Massachusetts is named the four-year-old filly Bonny Way, that in her futurity engagements last season was timed eight right in 2:10, and she is as game a proposition as ever looked through a bridle.

Then there is the mare Spanish Queen, by Onward Silver, that the Denver horsemen, George H. Esterbrook, recently paid $10,000 for, and she publicly stepped a mile last Fall in 2:09. She is expected to shade 2:06 in her races this year.

Handy J., the entry of Trainer W. L. Snow, worked in 2:10¼ when a three-year-old, but went wrong two years in succession, but is now said to be training sound and right.

From California are entered three, and so many good ones have come from the Pacific Coast that they cannot be counted out of the reckoning. Likely the best thought of of the three is Regalo, in the hands of Bill Murphy. The gelding has already been miles around the 2:10 notch, and has shown flashes of high speed. Then, too, there are the usual number in Charley Kinney's string that may turn out sensational when the active training season is in full swing.

BIG ATHLETIC BENEFIT FOR CHELSEA FUND

Great preparation is being made by the committee having arrangements for the big athletic benefit to be given at Park Square Coliseum and Skating Rink on Saturday night. The Coliseum bicycle track of the whole season will be held on that night. Ivor Lawson and Kramer, the king of bicycle riders, will meet, in their first appearance at the coliseum. All the professionals will be on hand to work for the good cause.

The amateurs will ride also.

Manager MacLean has arranged a meet that will surely be remembered by the bicycle fans. Albert Champion, the dare devil Frenchman, will give an exhibition one race.

Other motor races are on the card. No less attractive program is arranged for the rink where professional and amateur races will be held. Hamilton, the great skater, will make his first appearance since the Olympic games and possibly will meet Williams, the world's champion, and winner of the Amateur Athletic Union Medal. All the professionals will compete in a five-mile unlimited race. Also an amateur race will be held at three-mile competition.

The same scale of prices will prevail. The committee are working earnestly. Manager Bowen and Mrs. L. W. Bowen hope to realize a big sum for the Chelsea sufferers.

HARVARD WON AT LACROSSE.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., April 24.—Harvard defeated the Naval Academy at lacrosse here to-day, the visitors showing far greater knowledge of the game and ability in stick work.

LAWYERS BEAT LITERARY NINE

At the annual baseball clash between the Boston University Law School and Boston University College of Liberal Arts, at Wood Island Park yesterday, the latter received a most pronounced defeat, by a score of 8 to 11. The embryonic attorneys had their eye on the ball all the time, but the Liberal College, on the other hand, could not even find the coveted sphere save once or twice.

RODNEY SHIPS HORSES MAY 1

LOWELL, April 24.—Trainer A. S. Rodney, who has Richard Murphy's horses, has made arrangements to ship to the Rochester, N. Y., track on May 1 King Argument, 2:06¾; a full sister of Repetition, 2:04¾, and the stallion Judge Strong, a full brother of Strong, 2:08¾.

The stable will be raced over the half-mile tracks in the New England States till the Grand Circuit strikes Poughkeepsie, when Rodney will follow the big line along to Readville, Providence and Hartford.

Notes of the Diamond

BY JACK HOLCOMBE.

Buck Freeman got away with some more of his good old walloping yesterday. Two hits in four times up isn't bad for a "has-been" like Buck.

Medicine's habit of putting an entirely new team on the field after the game is reached may be a good thing for the young players, but it doesn't make him any friends with the chaps who have to work for the game.

If Waddell ever does make a wild pitch it's all off with the umpire, as he was very catchful with it. If the ball goes in the neighborhood of the batter it will get a call of Strike One, or left side. Wearers of the "Stony Widow" sailors and the Mad Hatters are just used to the calling and say, "Good look at that. My pat doesn't take up that much room, and I'll bet I can't see why they can't use the diamond."

One of Manager McGraw's recruits who gives promise of being a baseball wonder was formerly brakeman on a roller coaster. It is said he had great control over the down shoots.

Jennings maintains that the Sox are no stronger, if as strong, as they were last year. He figures the loss of Lloyd has not been met by the same players, and argues that their pitchers right now do not look any too strong.

Jennings will start using Killian and Donovan as soon as the weather warms up. He doesn't want to take chances with their arms when it is not necessary. Both of them are in shape right now.

Addie Joss: I may be wide of the mark in my calculations, but it is my belief that the St. Louis to keep him on the jump.

Mellitz is very much pleased with the showing of Jimmy Lord at third base. Lord is a youngster who has been with the team for a couple of years, and was given a chance to work during the Spring training season. He has made good, and Mellitz is glad of it.

Although Johnny Evers and Del. Howard of the Cubs have been out of the game for a time, they have a chance to put something for any one to take their places. He only looks wise and smiles.

Manager McGraw will start as many of his recruits with the Baltimore club as possible. McGraw will secure to think pretty well of the material, Manager Mack has.

Over in St. Louis pale clothes men are seeing to it that Jimmy Austin is kept in the stands during the games at home, and the same precaution should be taken in Pittsburg, the gamblers' paradise generally.

Dividing the Loot With Two Political Parties

The New York Traction Trust, It Seems, Was in Partnership With Both Republicans and Democrats.

Revolting as are the disclosures of metropolitan corruption to all decent citizens, the revelation that the New York Traction Trust divided its swag with the Republican and the Democratic machines is worse.

Ryan, backed into a corner by public disgust at his operations, admits that money in great sums was paid to agents of both parties.

The ingenuous Vreeland cheerfully babbles about handing William C. Whitney enormous amounts, which he supposes that Whitney spent for "political purposes."

And by political, he averred that he meant either contributing directly to political parties or their managers or "taking care" of politicians in stock speculations—politicians whose influence was desirable to have in the affairs of the company.

If the baseness, the utter degradation, the moral leprosy of this thing occurred either to Ryan or Vreeland, they kept it admirably concealed while they were testifying.

Here, by the confession of two men highest up in the traction monopoly, we have the secret of the long lawless career of the men who have throttled the traffic business in Manhattan.

What has made possible the corruption that has wrecked the surface lines in New York?

Defiance of the law.

How was this defiance of the law made possible?

BY PAYING MEN IN AUTHORITY CERTAIN BRIBES, COURTEOUSLY CALLED CAMPAIGN CONTRIBUTIONS, WHOSE PURPOSE WAS TO PROCURE THE SUSPENSION OF THE LAW IN ONE PARTICULAR CASE!

And in this shameful barter of special privilege to break the law for a money consideration we have the eminently respectable directors of the Metropolitan Street Railway Company, or Security Company, or any of the aliases it assumed for its nefarious purposes, as party of the first part, and the Grand Old Republican Party and the Tammany Democracy as party of the second part.

And as long as political bosses go from door to door in Wall Street passing the hat, as long as rich corruptionists know that the best brand of immunity is to be secured only at campaign headquarters, just so long will stockholders be plundered and properties ruined, and the laws of the land continue to be a laughing stock to any man who has enough money to ignore them.

Stopping campaign bribery would end the political bosses who have fattened on it, and who dictate absolutely the destinies of the parties they control.

There is to-day just one party which honestly opposes the sale of special privilege in any form, and which has made its record not only fighting the agents of corruption, but actually putting them in jail.

This plank is in the platform of the Independence Party:

"The Independence Party demands severe and effective legislation against all forms of corrupt practices at elections, and advocates prohibiting the use of any money at elections, except for meetings, literature and the necessary expenditures of candidates. The Independence Party believes that the dishonest use of money in the past, whether contributed by individuals or financial corporations, has been chiefly responsible for the corruption which has undermined our system of popular government.

And when, in return for the campaign contributions of such financial corporations as the Metropolitan, the bosses of a party sent election thugs to the polls to steal the election for corporation tools, it was the Independence Party and not the Republican or the Democratic Party who discovered those thugs at work and secured evidence to send them where they will have many years to reflect on the folly of being small thieves.

Enact that corrupt practices plank into law, and the officers of the law will be placed where criminal corporations cannot reach them except by statutory bribery, which is very dangerous business.

Keep elections clean and government will be kept clean, and in a clean government the sort of thing described by Ryan and Vreeland can have no existence.

Here's a "Patriotic Friend of Gambling."

Not Quite Willing to Sign His Name—But Never Mind

Copyright, 1908, by American-Journal-Examiner

A gentleman who writes good English and feels strongly, sends, neatly typewritten, a collection of statements in regard to public gambling. He says:

"Must the amusement of good, healthy men be interfered with in order that weaklings may be saved?"

Yes, certainly, that is the law of civilization. It happens that the New York bill against race track gambling does NOT interfere with "the amusement of good, healthy men"; it interferes with the vice of tens of thousands of harassed, worried gamblers, and with the money-making amusement of a few rich law-breakers.

But if race track gambling WERE, as this anonymous correspondent says, "the amusement of good, healthy men," it still ought to be "interfered with in order that weaklings may be saved."

You forbid public opium joints "that weaklings may be saved," because you don't want Chinese opium sharks to EXPLOIT the weaklings and multiply their numbers.

You forbid public faro banks and roulette wheels that "weaklings may be saved," because you don't want gambling fiends manufactured and employers robbed and families broken up in order to fatten the owners of the faro layouts and roulette wheels.

The same individual declares that all "red-blooded Americans" are in favor of race track gambling, and he includes President Roosevelt. He says that Mr. Roosevelt MUST favor race track gambling or his daughter would not have gone to the Bennings race track. We have no authority to speak for Mr. Roosevelt. But he has spoken for himself in a message denouncing gambling, in Wall Street and at the race track. And we don't believe that any member of his family ever went to bet publicly on the races with very much encouragement from him. But if Mr. Roosevelt WERE in favor of race track betting, and if he DID think it wise for women to frequent the race track atmosphere, that would not change the truth.

Public gambling, on the race track or anywhere else, is an insult to the Constitution, an offence against morals and common decency. It means the deliberate encouragement of degradation, and it will be stopped everywhere in the United States eventually, and in the State of New York very soon—and that is well known to the wise insiders among the Jockey Club "gentlemen" who are selling their racehorses and stock in race track companies as quickly as they can find fools to buy them.

The Opening Game

By Wex Jones

'TWAS a glorious day for Patsy
and the Holy Terrors all
As they marched along the pavement with a brand-
new bat and ball.
With Pretzel Hans behind them, his Topsies in a line;
With paper letters on their chests, the teams looked mighty fine;
And both their crowds of rooters were feeling glad and gay
To cheer the Asphalt League again upon an opening day.

RED PATSY moves up to the plate (an old tomato can);
He smites the sphere upon the nose; it hits a grimy fan—
A nice new ball!—he hesitates—the tempter's work is done,
The youngster freezes to the pill and takes it on the run.
Red Patsy drops the bat and joins the howling chase,
But guilt—as oft in greater things—will victor in the race.

RED PATSY kicked the curb with rage—no chance of tit for tat—
And, returning to the diamond, found some one'd swiped the bat!
The Terrors were so boiling mad the Topsies dissent scoff,
And one by one the visitors, like wise guys, drifted off.
Red Patsy cannot make it out; he doesn't often fall;
But—it's kind of odd the Topsies have a brand-new bat and ball!

HOW LOVE COMES

Sometimes in an Instant; Sometimes by Slow Growth; but if Not at All, Do Not Marry

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

Copyright, 1908, by American-Journal-Examiner

AFTER a man and woman have been in each other's society on five or six occasions, the man falls in love with the woman. If it is not reciprocated at this period, is there a possibility that it ever will be?

I am under the impression that if their love is not mutual after having met several times, it never will be. Thanking you in advance for the trouble this will put you to, I am,

A READER.

IT is impossible to speak for all natures by one general assertion in a matter of this kind.

Each woman ought to be able to understand herself in such a case. There are woman who could never "fall in love." They would have to arrive gradually at the goal. They would need propinquity and intimate acquaintance and long association before they could love.

Such love always seems to me a sort of dressed-up friendship; yet it often proves lasting and reliable and satisfactory.

To others love come suddenly and without warning. It stands, full-grown, in the pathway of the heart, and calls, "Surrender!"

An intuitive woman, it seems to me, should know after the third meeting at most whether she could ever love a man or not. She ought to be able to tell herself the truth about the matter, even if she were cautious enough to hide her heart from the man until she knew him more intimately.

Won by Patience

IT depends entirely upon the temperament of this woman whether she is to consider the matter settled in its present state. If her nature is cautious and deliberate, and prone to reason over things, there is yet hope for the lover. He will win her if he is persistent and patient and attentive enough.

If she is impulsive, romantic and intuitive, he may as well give give up the pursuit. She will never care for him, if she does not already feel any indications of the divine passion.

A young husband tells me he has a wife who is an excellent housekeeper, but that utterly lacks sentiment and affection. He says:

"A few kind, consoling words, offered when I am troubled, would do me a world of good. I am of a loving disposition, and at times I lose ambition entirely, sicken myself thinking about it, and the feeling is intolerable.

"I love her most devotedly and have explained matters to her, but it does not seem to impress her, and she treats it as though it was of no importance.

"Any suggestion or advice you could offer to assist me in overcoming that barrier between us and happiness will be awaited with anxiety and thankfully accepted."

It is a curious thing that this man—an American—can become sufficiently acquainted with a woman to make her his wife and not discover that she is so lacking in sentiment and affection.

Born in a Woman

IN Latin and Oriental countries, where girls are married without more than formal meeting with their selected husbands, this result could be understood. Here, where the utmost latitude is given in the companionship of the sexes, it seem incomprehensible.

When a woman is born without these qualities, I fear it will be a difficult matter to cultivate them in her nature, unless she can be made to understand how incomplete is her equipment for domestic happiness, and sets about reconstructing her own disposition.

The Delsarte theory is that if we assume an expression the feeling follows. If this wife can assume the outward semblance of affection, perhaps the feeling will grow in her heart.

The woman devoid of romance or affection has no right to marry. She is as much out of place in the domestic role as a dumb man would be in the field of oratory.

SUSPICIOUS OF BOSTON CENTRAL LABOR UNION.

THE following resolutions were adopted by the Brockton Central Labor Union last Wednesday evening:

Whereas, we, the Brockton Central Labor Union, have received on official copy of the resolutions passed by the executive council, A. F. of L., in Washington, declaring that "no Union, Central Body or State Federation has any right to declare unfair the Boston American, either by direct action in declaring said paper unfair or by any indirect action that brings the same result."

Therefore be it resolved that we accept, as in duty bound, the decision in place of any former action we may have taken, and

Be it further resolved, that we view any request from the Boston Central Labor Union or the Boston Newsboys to continue any action in violation of this resolution of the executive council as contrary to the best interests of the labor movement and one that will render us liable to discipline from the highest authority, which has heard all the facts and rendered its decision, which is final and binding.
